Fight for Southern France Nearing End; Nazi 19th Scattered

ROME, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The battle for southern France and destruction of the German 19th Army neared completion tonight as uncounted thousands of Nazis trudged back to Allied prison camps and disorganized enemy remnants fled up the Rhone valley, scattering their equipment behind them.

The greater part of the army to which Hitler entrusted the defense of southern France against Allied invasion has been wiped out in a fortnight's whirlwind campaign by Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's American and French 7th Army.

Whatever battered remnants managed to slip through the Allied noose and escaped to the north will have to be re-equipped and reorganized completely before they again will be of any use to Hitler's hard-pressed forces.

American troops slashed relentlessly at the fleeing enemy above Montelimar in the Rhone valley, 100 miles north of Marseille, where a flying Yank column reached the eastern bank of the Rhone river in a surprise thrust last week. Montelimar was in American hands.

Valley roads were littered with abandoned German vehicles, guns and supplies. The few vehicles still in use by the shattered Nazi columns were able to use the roads only under almost constant attacks by Allied warplanes, still favored by perfect flying weather.

Allied headquarters said American tanks and infantry were locked in a particularly bitter fight with enemy elements in the area of Sauzet, four miles up the Rhone valley from Montelimar. From Montelimar to the sea west of Marseille the great valley was declared free of Nazis except for a scattered few who were left behind in the enemy's mad scramble to escape the Allied trap.

A German news broadcast told of "fierce fighting" in the Rhone valley between Montelimar and Valence, 27 miles to the north, but declared that Nazi forces were withdrawing "in accordance with plan."

The enemy radio also confirmed that American troops commanded by Brig. Gen. Frederic Butler had driven north from Grenoble and reached the Swiss border near Annemasse, five miles east of Geneva. Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, leading enemy military commentator, declared however, that this represented only a "prestige victory" for the Americans as the "roads selected for the retreat of the army of Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz are not running in the direction of the Swiss frontier but considerably farther to the west."

Allied units have occupied Nimes, a city of 93,758, and reached the area of Uzes, west of Avignon.

FATHER OF QUADS—Pvt. Charles E. Lee embraces wife in Gainesville hospital after arriving there from Camp Blanding, Fla. Lee has a nine-day furlough.

Dad Arrives To See Two Surviving Quads

By MARY KEY WYNNE.
Constitution Staff Writer.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 29.—Pvt. Charles E. Lee, proud father of the quadruplets born here at the Hall County Memorial hospital Sunday, arrived at the hospital about 4 p. m. today to see his wife and two new sons.

He was greeted at the front of the hospital by numerous relatives and friends. As soon as he had received congratulations from his welcoming committee, the 25-year-old father hurried to his wife.

Beaming from ear to ear, he entered the room and went over to the bed where the mother and daughter, 3-year-old Betty Mae, were resting and gave them both a big kiss.

Pvt. Lee left Camp Blanding, Fla., at 1 a. m. yesterday, and went by bus from Jacksonville to Atlanta, since he would lose several hours waiting for the next train out.

ARRIVES IN ATLANTA

The tall, brown-eyed soldier, smoking the traditional cigar, stepped off the bus in Atlanta at 1:45 p. m. today and by 2 p.m. he was in the Constitution's car headed for Gainesville.

Peering from the car window, he sighed and said: "It sure is good to see these old red hills of Georgia, especially after being in Florida for several months."

Dr. George Karelas, resident physician at the hospital, who is in charge of the babies, said that Mrs. Lee was terribly depressed over losing two of the quadruplets but that she suffered no physical setback.

"CHARLIE" AND "BOBBY"

The Lees, upon reunion, immediately went about naming the two baby boys. One they named Charles Edward Lee Jr., in honor of the father, and the other George Robert Lee. The latter was named for the two doctors who delivered him, Dr. Karelas and Dr. Robert L. Rogers.

"I'm not so particular about the names," smiled Mrs. Lee, "but one just has to be named for his father. We'll call them Charlie and Bobby."

During the early part of the day the surviving quadruplets were extremely weak and both had lost a little weight. One of the babies was in dangerously low condition, being unable to retain any nourishment.

Later though Dr. Karelas reported: "They are both in good condition now and no complications have set in recently. In fact, you might say that they are up to par."

One of the remaining quads weighs two pounds, six ounces and the other three pounds, two ounces. The weight of the baby who died last night was two pounds, four ounces, and the one passing away this morning weighed two pounds, eight ounces, according to Dr. Karelas.

LEE IS HOTEL'S GUEST

Arriving just before the father, Mrs. Mary D. Goudelock, anethetist; Dr. T. T. Crews, oxygen therapist, and Bill Stansil, owner of an oxygen therapy, all of Atlanta, administer an oxygen-helium mixture to the quads.

Pvt. Lee, having a nine-day emergency furlough, will stay at a hotel in town so he can be near his wife and boys (his home is a few miles out from Gainesville).

Receiving the treatment of a celebrity, the father got an invitation from the Dixie Hunt hotel to be its guest for the duration of his visit with the newly acquired family. His transportation fare and in-

Americans Gain 25 Miles; In 55 Miles of Belgium

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 30.—(AP)—As Allied invasion armies speared across France almost at will last night, British forces made a determined drive to wipe out the Nazi flying-bomb bases on the French coast.

A mysterious explosion that was the heaviest felt in Britain since the war began shook the whole southeastern coast of England shortly before midnight. There was no explanation of what it was, but it appeared to come from a seaward direction.

At almost the same time a British general was issuing a special order to his troops declaring, "For the first time in this war we are fighting directly to free our homes, our wives and our children from German attacks. Every yard we advance reduces the area from which he (the German) can launch his secret weapons . . . let us drive forward relentlessly, taking as our motto 'One more kilometer, one less bomb.'"

SHAEF, Aug. 29.—(AP)—From the headquarters of the British Second Army came the announcement that the Falaise Gap encirclement netted the Allied armies—the American First, the Canadian First and the British Second—42,000 prisoners, with an estimated 30,000 Nazi dead in the same area. Thus the German casualty toll for the campaign in northern France to date appeared to stand well over 325,000, with figures still to come for the drives along the lower Seine since August 25.

25-MILE GAIN

The American Third Army in a swift 25-mile smash across hallowed battlefields of the first World War captured Belleau Wood, Chateau-Thierry and Soissons yesterday, rolling northward along the historic Ardennes invasion route within 55 miles of the Belgian border.

Covering miles for each bloody yard their fathers won in 1918, the Americans under Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. encountered only minor resistance, and Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball reported from the front that the Germans were "in headlong flight" toward Belgium and their homeland.

Turning northward from their positions east of Paris and advancing at a rate of better than a mile an hour, the Third Army threatened to flank the Nazis' rocket bomb installations to the northwest.

FIGHTING AT CHALONS

East of the capital they were, by German account, fighting in the streets of Chalons, only 96 miles from the German frontier and a bare 50 miles from the battlefield east of Verdun on which the Germans and the Allies were fighting when the first world war armistice was announced November 11, 1918.

Latest reports reaching the supreme command said the easternmost of Patton's operations had carried units of his Third Army four miles and six miles southeast of Chalons to Lepine and Marson, respectively.

Well to the south still another column made a further eastern advance from Troyes about 15 miles

Constanta Is Captured By Russians

Hungarian Regime Resigns as Nazis Occupy Slovakia

By The Associated Press

Announcement by Premier Stalin, in a special order, that Russian troops have captured Constanta, Romania's greatest Black Sea port, coincided with the following swift developments in the seething Balkans:

(1) The German news agency Transocean broadcast a report that the Hungarian government had resigned;

(2) Gen. Ferdinand Catlos, commander-in-chief of Slovakia's armed forces, announced in a broadcas over the Bratislava radio that German troops were carrying out a full-scale occupation of the Nazi-established puppet state amid continuing guerrilla activity; and

(3) The Moscow radio denied what it described as "foreign press statements" that Russia had accepted a Bulgarian declaration of neutrality.

Constanta, a city of 80,000, is 29 miles from the Bulgarian border established by Hitler in the Vienna award of 1940.

The capture was accomplished through a landing of troops from the Russian Black sea fleet with the support of the Third Ukrainian Army, Stalin said in his order.

Stalin pointed out that for three years the port had served as the principal base for the Nazy navy in the Black sea. Constanta is 190 miles from the Bosphorus straits.

The Germans already had acknowledged that Soviet troops had reached the Ploesti-Constanta pipe line. They also admitted withdrawing from Buzau, oil and railway town 40 miles northeast of Ploesti.

With Russian mountain troops invading Hungarian-held Transylvania at two points to the northeast, the shadow of a potential deathtrap fell over the Germans still standing to defend the vital Ploesti oil region.

In Hungary Regent Adm. Nicholas Horty was reported to have accepted the resignation of Premier Doeme Sztojay and appointed Col. Gen. Lakatos as new chief minister.

Last Friday the German radio announced that the Hungarian government had been rearranged because "events in Romania have caused certain political tensions" in the Nazi-occupied country. No details were given at the time.

Gen. Catlos, in his broadcast, which was reported by the Federal Communications Commission, appealed to the people to receive the Germans as Allies and to obey

U. S. Navy Aviation Chief Pledges Crushing Punches for Japanese

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(INS)—New blows against the Japanese of such devastating power as to make offensive operations of recent months look like a "sweet, summer zephyr" were promised tonight by Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, the Navy's air chief, on the occasion of the 31st anniversary of American naval aviation.

This anniversary coincides with the first birthday of the Navy's great Task Force 58, the flying and floating colossus which is recognized as the most destructive instrumentality in the history of sea warfare.

"We hit the enemy hard blows both in the Atlantic and the Pacific last year, but these blows were light compared with the blows we are now prepared to deliver," said Adm. Fitch, who is deputy chief of naval operations (air).

He emphasized that the advances made through the Pacific during the past year were due to the completion of 14 of the 27,000-ton Essex class aircraft carriers which spearhead Task Force 58.

TREMENDOUS STRENGTH

"We could not move against the Japs until the new carriers joined the fleet," Adm. Fitch said. "They made possible the bypassing tactics which have placed us so close to Japan. Without them, we would still be inching along, and probably would still be in the Marshalls."

It was disclosed that the Navy had 34,071 planes of June 30, 1944, and 47,276 Navy and Marine Corps pilots; and that approximately 100 carriers are now "in or nearing action." Besides the 27,000-tonners, these include nine 10,000-ton Independence class carriers, and increasing numbers of 4,000 to 5,000-ton escort carriers.

Before many months two 45,000-ton "battleship carriers" will be added to the fleet.

The Essex class ships carry more than 80 planes, bombers and fighters; the Independence class, more than 45; and the "baby flattops," about 21 planes.

FULL-SCALE BLITZKRIEG

"The year just closing was a year of spectacular achievement, which saw Navy wings bridge the broad Pacific and carry the war against Japan to the very threshold of the enemy," Admiral Fitch declared.

"It was a year which brought to fruition the dreams of naval aviation pioneers about the potentialities of planes flown from ships . . .

"The appearance of the Essex class carriers in the Western Pacific, together with impressive numbers of their smaller sisters,

FDR TO OPEN CAMPAIGN SEPT. 23 IN ADDRESS BEFORE TEAMSTERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he would make his first political speech of the campaign in Washington, the evening of September 23 before a group which will be organized by Daniel Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL).

The President told his news conference he did not believe the speech would be very political, but that it would seem so and he might as well so label it in advance.

Radio time for the speech would be paid for, he added, by the Democratic National Committee.

Mr. Roosevelt told reporters he contemplated no nation-wide campaign swing because he had too much to do.

He said he had a good idea what he was going to say to the Tobin group, but would not tell the reporters his subject. Tobin has been chairman of the Democratic Committee's labor division in previous Roosevelt campaigns and the President said today he hoped Tobin would take that position in this campaign.

Arnall Ends Two Busy Days With Roosevelt Talk

By RALPH McGILL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29.—Gov. Arnall, of Georgia, concluded a busy two days in the nation's capital with a 40-minute conference with President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had asked Georgia's Governor to come here for the meeting. He left for Atlanta tonight.

Gov. Arnall on emerging from the conference, was asked by waiting White House correspondents if he had any story. He told them this time he was sorry he did not. They then asked if he had been offered or discussed a cabinet position and he replied, "I am very happy being Governor of Georgia and will continue in that capacity trying to serve the best interest of Georgia."

He said also he was delighted to see the President looking so well, this fact the writer confirmed later in the day at the President's press conference. He looks grand and reports that he isn't well and doesn't look well simply are not true.

BEST NEWS OF DAY

The best news of the day was that Gov. Arnall set in motion a plan which he hopes will result in the development of Brunswick, Georgia's natural harbor, by the installation of a set of docks. He also initiated a plan for obtaining for Brunswick a drydock which will, if successful, enable that city to develop a maritime industry which would be permanent, replacing the present wartime shipyard at the Glynn county city.

"I have discussed the present production of the mobile docks which we have used so successfully in our landings at Cherbourg and at islands in the Pacific," said Gov. Arnall, "and I am informed that building docks suited for a great harbor will be much more simple than in the past. I have great hopes of obtaining for Brunswick docks and a drydock. I am informed there is not a suitable drydock south of Baltimore.

"Our future is going to be bound up with trade, especially trade developing from South America. I have very real hopes that we may add to Georgia a second port. The natural harbor at Brunswick could be developed into a great port.

"The value to Georgia of developing our sea commerce and trade is incalculable. There is no reason why our natural coastal assets should not be developed. I believe that, with the great increase in ships and shipping, Georgia could gain great profit by an additional port on a natural harbor."

Gov. Arnall's two days here have been most productive. On Monday he and Claude Shaw, of the attorney general's office. Visited the solicitor general and attorney general of the United States. They and the Governor had high words of praise for the work done by Assistant Attorney General Shaw and the State Department headed by Grady Head.

SHIPPING CHARGES

The two federal officials promised Georgia all possible co-operation in the freight rate case which Georgia has on file with the supreme court. The court will rule on the admission of the case in October. The government has two suits on file in lower courts, one in Chicago and one in Nebraska, charging conspiracy in freight rates by western railroads. He also is investigating southern roads, where the same discrimination exists, to the continued detriment of the south.

Charges for shipping manufactured articles out of the south almost invariably are higher than

Warmer Weather Forecast for Today

The high temperature yesterday was 84 degrees at 4:30 p. m., and the low was 64 at 5 a. m.

'Points' for Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Meat rationing will start September 16, for the two million inhabitants of Rio de Janeiro and the Brazilian federal district. Families of two probably will be allowed a half pound of meat daily. Use of milk for ice cream, candy and restaurant desserts will be banned for two months starting Friday. Meat and milk shortages have become acute.

BOY WITH THORN AND QUICK WITS BRINGS 3 TO CAPTURE, INDICTMENT

A barefoot boy with a thorn in his heel, an alert pair of eyes and a quick-thinking mind, has brought about the indictment of three men on robbery charges.

The story of the boy, Billy Duncan, 13, of 906 DeKalb avenue, N. E., was disclosed yesterday when the Fulton county grand jury indicted W. T. Ridings, W. D. (Buck) Turner and Bill Cain. The men were charged with robbing Johnny Goff, Forrest road filling station operator, of $276 and ration coupons sufficient for more than 1,000 gallons of gas.

It was revealed that Duncan, with a companion, Ronald Edge, 11, of 38 Waverly way, sat on a curb near the station the afternoon of August 21, to remove a briar from Duncan's foot.

An automobile drove into the station and a man carrying a sawed-off shotgun went inside. Suspecting something amiss, the Duncan boy wrote the license number of the car in the sand. Several minutes later, when a patrol car arrived, the boys gave police the license number. Within 30 minutes the wanted car was captured and the three men arrested.

GREATEST HORROR IN NAZI EUROPE

Bored Germans Tell Story Of Unimaginable Atrocities

By DANIEL DE LUCE.

LUBLIN, Poland, Aug. 27.—(Delayed)—(AP). Four German prisoners of war stood with a bored air in front of a Russian-Polish atrocities commission here tonight and told their stories of Majdanek, perhaps the greatest horror in Nazi Europe.

In curt phrases they asserted that men, women and children of 22 nationalities had been gassed, hanged, shot, burned, drugged or starved to death in the three years of the operation of the Majdanek barbed-wire-enclosed encampment in a rolling meadowland at the edge of Lublin. Russians and Poles have estimated that it received more than half a million persons doomed to extermination.

Majdanek is a ghastly fantasy. It was established for murder on a vast but methodical scale. Until a group of American and British correspondents visited it today—with its six concrete vaults for execution by cyanide or carbon monoxide gas, its open air crematorium surrounded by skeletons, its mounds of human ashes mixed with manure for fertilizing cabbage patches and its overflow burial ground in a pine woods carpeted with decaying bodies—most of these newspapermen could not even begin to imagine the proportions of its frightfulness.

Tonight with our clothes still reeking of the dead, we sat in a stuffy Lublin courtroom while three German SS (Elite Guard) officers and one German civilian renegade spoke indifferently of Majdanek's scenes of slaughter and blamed all on "orders from above."

N. A. Stalb, a blond, six-foot German butcher, arrested in 1939 for selling meat in the black market, told in a clear, strong voice of his incarceration in Majdanek, during which he once became a member of the barracks police detail.

"I have seen a tractor haul as many as 400 corpses at one time from the 'bath and disinfection house' to the ovens on the hill," he said. "One day I saw the bodies of 157 Polish children who had been gassed. Another time I saw a group of Polish women marched up a hill to be shot to save the trouble of gassing them. They were ordered to disrobe. One refused, a girl about 28 to 29. Two men tied her hands and legs, put her on a steel stretcher and thrust her alive into the white hot oven."

Hermann Vogel, 42, an SS group leader from Muhlheim, stared ahead with a set face as he told of shipping 18 carloads of clothing in two months to Germany from the Majdanek warehouse he supervised.

"Yes, all this clothing, even babies' garments, belonged to those executed," he said. "I have seen groups of 120 to 150 persons taken to the gas house in the evening and their bodies stacked outside the next morning. Yes, I knew children were murdered, but what could we small people in the SS do? We couldn't protest."

SS Komandofuehrer Theodore Schoelen, 40, in charge of clothing collection at the shower room adjoining the gas chambers, claimed he never saw an execution—only corpses afterward. He admitted remembering November 3, 1943, when, according to the camp records,

Poles Near Gothic Line, Capture Fano

Clark's Army, Along Arno River, Bombed By Nazi Air Force

ROME, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Polish forces driving up the Adriatic coast of Italy have captured the village of Fano, six miles from Pesaro, and are pushing forward within three miles of the Germans' Gothic line outposts in that sector, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Nazis appeared to have withdrawn almost the last of their troops into the Gothic line, a powerful barrier of steel and concrete, and to be awaiting an assault by the Allied Fifth and Eighth armies.

(A dispatch from the Swiss-Italian border on Monday reported the Germans were evacuating three provinces of northern Italy and pulling back toward the Brenner Pass, suggesting that Hitler might have decided to give up the long-prepared Gothic defenses without a fight. There was nothing to support this from Allied sources.)

Apparently fearful that Lt. Gen. Clark's Fifth Army was about ready to strike across the Arno river west of Florence, the enemy called upon his small remaining air force yesterday which bombed and machinegunned Allied positions at several points along the stream.

An Allied communique said Eighth Army units near the Adriatic had driven the Germans north of the Azzilla river and occupied high ground above Monte Ciccardo. Farther inland the Poles were reported enveloping the town of Urbino. Rufina, 10 miles east and slightly north of Florence, was evacuated by the Nazis.

GI's MARCH IN DAD'S FOOTSTEPS AS PARIS MARKS NEW FREEDOM

PARIS, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Past the Arc de Triomphe and down through the avenues where their fathers had walked a generation ago, the men of a great American infantry division marched today.

This was Paris' first real commemoration of her new freedom. There were cheers and laughter, but it was a solemn moment when Lt. Gen. Bradley and Lt. Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig laid a wreath on the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier of World War I.

Hundreds of thousands of persons stood along the line of march along the Champs Elysees, the Palace Vendome, at the Obelisk, Place de la Concord, in the Rue de Rivoli and all through these beloved avenues.

School Board Speeds Contracts on 7 Projects

Contracts for architectural services on seven preferential school improvements costing an estimated $2,060,000 will be ready for approval of the Atlanta Board of Education September 12 as a result of board action to expedite a postwar school construction program. The selected projects are a part of the $7,200,000 after the war construction program planned by the board.

Architects on six projects were selected outright by the board, and the seventh, the enlargement of Boys' and Tech High schools was referred to a special committee composed of D. F. McClatchey, chairman of the board's finance committee; Thomas W. Clift, school business manager, and J. Austin Dilbeck, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee.

Schools and the designated architects approved follow:

Murphy Junior High, Barili & Humphreys, cost $600,000; Washington (Negro) High, Eugene C. Wachendorff, $250,000; Williams street, Arthur Neal Robinson Sr., and Jr., $210,000; Connally, Jess Wilheit, $110,000; Wesley avenue, Henry H. Jordan, $80,000; Ed S. Cook, Ivey & Creek, $160,000.

Due to the fact that Hentz Alder and Shultze and Robert & Company were architects jointly when original buildings were constructed at Tech and Boys' High schools, the board decided to establish a committee to work out a plan under which only one architect would be designated for the $650,000 improvement planned there.

When the meeting opened Monday night, the board adopted a proposal of the Atlanta chapter AIA that projects be awarded separately to specific firms and that they be held responsible for their completion in a workmanlike manner. The fee was set generally at 5 1-2 per cent of the cost.

Clift was instructed to request City Attorney Jack C. Savage to prepare contracts with those selected so that they can be approved at the September 12 board session so that no delay may be encountered in mapping working drawings.

The school board moved speedily to be ready to take maximum advantage of any federal public works program which may be initiated in the postwar era.

'Uncle Billy' Van Houten Dies at 71

Known to Thousands As Tech Patriarch; Oldest Faculty Man

William Van Houten, the beloved "Uncle Billy" of thousands of Georgia Tech students, died shortly after 4 p. m. yesterday at St Joseph's infirmary. He was 71.

Although he never went to college and had no degree, honorary or otherwise, Van Houten was the oldest faculty member at Georgia Tech. Almost 56 years ago, when the technical school was beginning its second year, he became an assistant in the foundry department, of which he later became foreman.

After graduation from the Atlanta High school more than half a century ago, Van Houten entered business with his father, Peter S. Van Houten, at the old Novelty Iron Works. At the age of 17 he was employed at the Georgia Tech foundry, where his duties were partly teaching and partly commercial, for at that time the new school did a large amount of industrial work.

When the general assembly banned industrial work at the school in 1898, Van Houten was made foreman of the Tech foundry. He held this position until his death.

Among "Uncle Billy's" pupils during his 56 years at the engineering school were the late Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, Bobby Jones, Charlie Yates and L. W. Robert Jr.

The Rosary will be said at 8 p. m. today at the residence. Funeral services will be at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in Sacred Heart church, with Father John Emmerth officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

REICH READY WITH SPONGE

Nazis Willing To Quit If We Are 'Reasonable'

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—In a gloomy review of the Nazi war picture, Lt. Gen. Kurt Dittmar implied tonight that Germany would be willing to cease fighting if the Allies would relax their war aims and substitute "an attitude of reason and better understanding." He addressed the German people by radio.

The high command propagandist acknowledged German reverses in France and deplored developments in Romania, but said that nevertheless Germany "has to continue as long as our enemies stick to their war aims," and "as long as reason and better understanding have not replaced this determination "to destroy Germany.

"If this determination did not exist," he said, "if the world we face had been ready honestly to recognize the living rights of a great, capable and hard-working nation, no reason could have been seen why this misery had to fill the world once more for half a decade, and will continue to fill it."

Dittmar said that the development of the war situation "may certainly have raised the hopes among our enemies that his objective, the military defeat of Germany, is no longer as far away as only three months ago."

"The outward development of events even appears to justify this view to a large extent," he said.

Drawing a parallel between Allied successes in 1944 and the German victories of 1940, Dittmar said that "equipment led to success—and the numerical superiority is today on the enemy side."

Dittmar said it is now a "question of self preservation or annihilation," adding, "in two months we have lost a considerable proportion of the fruits we harvested earlier and thought we could hold for good as a foundation for our economic and military position."

The German retreats in southern France "save time in helping the prospect of establishing somewhere a new, firm front, following the arrival of new forces," he said.

Regarding the eastern front Dittmar said "it would be madness to deny that developments in Romania in every respect are unwelcome to us. The Romanian army contained much good fighting material."

HITLER ON LAM?

U. S. Fears Rats To Quit Sinking Ship

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP) Military leaders here are becoming increasingly apprehensive over the possibility that Adolf Hitler and some of his henchmen may fly from their battered inner fortress in the next few weeks and seek refuge in a neutral country.

Concern has become such that a new appeal may be issued to the neutrals not to give sanctuary to the men who led the world into war and now appear bent upon a final drama of unparalleled bloodlust in Europe.

Such an appeal would be directed particularly to Spain and Argentina, because of their past or present links with the Nazi government of Germany and the strong suspicions current in diplomatic and treasury circles here that the German leaders have stored funds in both countries.

American officials consider it a foregone conclusion that many of the Nazi hierarchy who are too well known to have any chance of concealment in Germany by going underground will try to save themselves from Allied trial and punishment by dramatic airplane escapes.

This last hope of escape, it is believed, is one of the reasons why so many of the top men in Nazidom today are willing to stick with Hitler while all over Europe their political and military fortress is caving in.

What Hitler will do remains the all-consuming speculation in Washington and the conviction of officials with whom the subject has been discussed is that if he is not killed at the last minute by some of his own henchmen, he may very well kill himself. There always remains the chance, however, that he will quit the country.

It has been almost exactly a year since the question of sanctuary was last taken up with the neutrals. At that time Italy was falling and the future of Mussolini was a subject of speculation like that now centered on Hitler.

The State Department then instructed its diplomatic representatives in Stockholm, Ankara, Madrid, Lisbon, Bern, Vatican City and Buenos Aires to call attention of the neutral governments to a press conference statement by President Roosevelt urging against asylum for "Axis leaders or their tools."

Mussolini made his escape to Germany and spared the neutrals from deciding the question at that time.

Air Aid Seen To Red Army

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 30. (AP)—The Berlin radio reported strong Allied bomber formations over Danzig and East Prussia early today, indicating a possibility that the RAF was throwing air support to the Red Army.

While the heavy force was hitting Prussian strongholds, the Germans said that nuisance raiders had appeared over northwestern Germany.

The night actions developed after the fourth day of sustained attacks on German transport in France and the lowlands by U. S. Eighth Air Force fighters.

It was 1940 all over again above the French battle zones and beyond, except that this time the planes were American instead of German. There was virtually no opposition.

A recapitulation last night showed that in three days of the attacks the fliers had destroyed 1,507 railroad cars and damaged 1,874, hit 1,223 motor vehicles, two oil trains, 42 oil tanks, 411 locomotives, 46 barges, three ammunition trains and 82 ammunition carriers.

Yesterday they reported destruction of 90 locomotives and 310 railway cars on lines ranging from Brussels to Lyon in southeastern France. The far-ranging Thunderbolts and Lightnings also hit more than 310 motor vehicles, shot up two railroad roundhouses and a number of warehouses and bombed two tunnels.

Clothing Collection Starts For Robot Bomb Victims

The trucks have started to roll in the drive to collect clothes for robot-bombed Britons as donated by tenants, owners and managers in the 48 office buildings of the Atlanta Association of Building Owners and Managers.

The drive will end September 12. The appeal was first issued August 12, but it was not until yesterday that the trucks started to pick up donations.

Contributions will be turned over to the British War Relief Committee to be sent to the English victims of the German robot bombing. When a sufficient quantity of clothes has been collected, they will be shipped immediately to London.

"The trucks which went out yesterday," said M. E. Harkins, chairman of the civilian defense and war activities committee, "will continue to pick up the bundles until the campaign ends. One building has already promised us 450 pairs of shoes."

Serving on the committee with Harkins are E. H. Skinner, W. T. Healey and Raymond Inglett. They will work in co-operation with the British Information Office and Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, chairman of the Atlanta British War Relief Committee, to collect old discarded clothing of men, women and children.

Lead Pencil Campaign Issue in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 29.—An argument about black lead pencils swirled tonight around Gov. Bricker, the Republican vice presidential nominee, and developed into a major precampaign issue in Ohio.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, a Democrat, issued a statement accusing Bricker of "deliberately trying to prevent an honest soldier vote," and said he would go to court to compel the state to send a pencil to every soldier requesting a November election ballot.

Ohio law requires that ballots be marked with a black lead pencil. A week ago Democratic leaders and spokesmen for the CIO demanded that Bricker authorize a special session of the legislature convening next Tuesday to relax the statute so absentee voters could mark ballots with any instrument at hand. Many men in front lines don't have pencils, they contended.

Bricker replied that he felt the lead pencil proviso was a "clean election law" and said election boards were being instructed to count only those absentee ballots marked with a black pencil. To change the system, he said, would destroy "the secrecy of the ballot" by making it possible to determine how persons vote. Later, however, he said he had "not closed the door" on the issue and would study it further.

Ferguson asserted in an open letter to Bricker that Ohio law provided that each voter be furnished a pencil with which to mark his ballot, and he wanted a pencil sent each soldier.

He added:

"I charge you, Governor, with deliberately trying to prevent an honest soldier vote . . . You refuse to ask them (the legislature) to pass legislation to protect the inalienable rights of American fighting men."

Gilliam Plan Faces Airing

A proposal by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of city council's finance committee, to have the city chief of construction issue all construction permits, is slated for an airing at a public hearing set for 3 p. m. today.

Alderman Roscoe Ailor, chairman of city council's ordinance committee, has called the hearing, and affected department heads—City Building Inspector Charles J. Bowen and Dewey L. Johnson, superintendent of electrical affairs—have been invited to attend.

Under the Gilliam measure City Construction Chief Clarke Donaldson would take over issuance of building, electrical, plumbing and all other permits for construction in the city, consolidating the process in his office.

Gilliam contends the new setup would "centralize responsibility and would relieve the public from the necessity of going to several offices to get a simple permit, all of which he should be able to get within a very few minutes."

Half Million Cut In Price of Oil

Slight reductions in ceiling prices of gasoline, kerosene and distillate oils in Georgia and other southern states that will result in savings of half a million dollars monthly for motorists were announced here by the regional OPA.

In Georgia and parts of Florida east of the Apalachicola river the price of gasoline will be reduced three-tenths of a cent per gallon, effective September 10 at filling stations and on September 1 for other sellers.

Ceiling prices on kerosene and distillate fuel oil were reduced five-tenths of a cent per gallon, to be effective on the same dates as gasoline price reductions.

The price cuts were made possible because of reduced costs for wartime methods of delivery of petroleum products, Alexander Harris, regional OPA director, said.

Wiley Wasden Fined $5,000

A fine of $5,000 was imposed by Federal Judge Robert L. Russell on Wiley Anderson Wasden, Millen businessman, who entered a plea of nolo contendere in court to charges of evading payment of income taxes totaling $11,852.33 over a period of three years, from 1938 through 1940.

Wasden, owner of sawmill and other business enterprises in Millen, was fined $1,000 on the first count of an indictment which charged that he made a fraudulent tax return for 1938, claiming his income was $2,841.59 when actually it was $22,822.48.

He was fined $2,000 on each of the next two counts of the indictment, which charged he made $32,568 in 1939 but filed a return claiming his income was $5,351.59, thus defrauding the government of $3,982.13 in taxes.

He was also alleged to have evaded payment of $5,892.68 on his 1940 income of $31,535 by claiming his income was $3,356.41 and the taxes due were only $11.28.

It was reported that, before entering his plea of nolo contendere, Wasden paid the U. S. Treasury approximately $17,000 which covered the amount due in taxes plus the civil penalty imposed under income tax laws for delay in payment.

AMERICAN ADVANCE—U. S. troops have taken Chateau-Thierry and Soissons and have driven to the Marne river between Chalons and Vitry in a push toward Verdun. Allied forces north of Paris have linked Seine river bridgeheads at Vernon and Mantes into a solid front and have thrust 11 miles beyond that stream. Arrows show drives.

to Piney, on the route to the river Aube.

In taking Soissons the Americans reached the south bank of the Aisne river and promised momentarily to break across the Aisne-Somme line, the last important water barrier guarding German positions in Belgium and the homeland.

As the Allies neared Belgium Patriots in that occupied country got a preliminary call to arms from the independence front. All able-bodied Patriots were ordered to join the resistance army, to steal arms from the Germans and to prepare for an all-out battle for liberation.

The Americans also were on the south bank of the Aisne at Fismes, 16 miles east of Soissons.

SPECTACULAR THRUST

This spectacular thrust northwestward toward the Ardennes Forest and Sedan was putting in reverse invasion marches which the Germans made southward in 1870, in 1914, and finally in the present war when the blitzkrieg triumphed over the crumbling French in the spring of 1940.

The 25-mile drive which Patton's men made northward from Chateau-Thierry to Soissons in one day seemed almost miraculous compared with the French drive which captured the town in the great second battle of the Marne in 1918. Then the French required from July 18 to August 2—16 days—to move into Soissons from their nearest positions just three miles to the west.

The American First Division was fighting beside the French a few miles south and west of Soissons.

SPEED OF DRIVE

Indicating the speed of the American drive, supreme headquarters announced in its communique that the Americans were six miles from Chateau-Thierry. Then late in the day the fall of that historic town, Belleau Wood five miles to the northwest, and Soissons 25 miles north, were announced simultaneously.

Belleau Wood is a permanent memorial to American Marines and infantrymen who died there in June of 1918.

Below Chalons, where American entry was announced by the German communique, the Americans struck the central Marne at two points between Chalons and Vitry.

For the present at least the lightning advance of the Third Army over the rolling green battlefields of the earlier war overshadowed the operations of other Allied forces between Paris and the channel coast.

There were signs, however, that here, too, American, Canadians and British troops were now ready to strike out, possibly with Gen. Patton's men holding the east wall of a huge pocket, in an effort to conquer the defenders of the flying bomb sites along the channel.

Two British armored columns broke out of the Seine bridgehead at Vernon soon after daybreak, one driving forward 12 miles to Etre Pagny and Hacqueville and the other punching five miles forward to Bray-et-Lu on the Epte river.

BRITISH BRIDGEHEADS

Simultaneously two British bridgeheads across the Seine east of Louviers and at Vernon were so enlarged that they were virtually joined together and in effect became a single bridgehead. At least four bridges have been thrown across the Seine in these areas, with men, armor, artillery and supplies moving across in a constant stream, front dispatches said.

The bridgehead east of Louviers was almost doubled in size during the day with the capture of Orgeville and Acouis, and forward elements struck to the southeast and entered the river town of Les Andeleys last night.

The American and British bridgeheads below Paris have been consolidated into one huge reservoir of men and material extending some 30 miles along the north bank of the Seine and already thrusting forward 11 miles to a point just north of the Paris-Rouen highway.

Radio France at Algiers, quoting a French national defense headquarters communique, said announcement of the liberation of Bordeaux had been premature and "vanguards of the Allied armies do not appear to have reached the region as yet."

LIQUOR CLERK ASKS DRAFT RELEASE; SAYS HE'S PREACHER

Pvt. Ivan Taylor Harris, Fort McPherson soldier, sought release from the Army by appearing in federal court here on a writ of habeas corpus claiming he was "unfairly classified" by his draft board and unjustly inducted into the Army.

Harris, a clerk in a liquor store before induction into the Army on August 22, told the court that he was an ordained elder and the equivalent of a minister of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at Waycross, and entitled to a minister's draft classification.

He charged that the draft board acted "unfairly and abused its discretion" in classifying him 1-A instead of 4-D.

Harvey H. Tisinger, assistant U. S. attorney, argued before Judge Robert L. Russell that Harris was not entitled to a 4-D classification since he clearly stated his occupation as a liquor store clerk on his occupational draft questionnaire.

Harris testified in court yesterday that he was a clerk in a liquor store for six days a week but on Sunday acted as counselor to the president of a Waycross branch of the church.

Judge Russell took the matter under advisement.

swiftly revolutionized the war against Japan from a limited defensive-offensive operation to a full-scale sweep of classic blitzkrieg proportions.

"Task Force 58, which scourged the Jap so effectively in the last eight months, was just a sweet, summer zephyr compared to the array and arrangement of ships, planes and other weapons—old and new—which are ready to lash out now."

JAPANESE OUTSTRIPPED

The Navy Department said that the quality of American naval fliers and planes is attested by the record of aircraft losses in the Pacific fighting.

During the first six months of this year, U. S. naval aviators maintained a better than four to one advantage over Japanese airmen, having destroyed more than 2,300 enemy planes as against 260 U. S. Navy planes lost in combat.

"Naval aviation's 31st year saw the Jap outstripped not only in carrier-building but in numerous other lines which all add up to certainty of victory over the enemy who once boasted he would dictate peace terms in the White House," the Navy Department said in an anniversary statement.

"The development and tactical employment of fighter-bombers, night fighters and rocket projectiles were other highlights of the year.

"Long before another anniversary rolls around, naval aviation will be hurling at least two more new weapons against the foe—a twin-engine fighter and a scouting seaplane of unmatched speed and range."

The beginnings of American naval aviation date from August 30, 1913, when George Dewey, of Spanish War fame, signed the report of the Navy General Board recommending establishment of an air department suited to the needs of the Navy in war.

The puppet Slovak authorities declared martial law on August 12 because of "the general war situation" and because, they said, "groups of parachutists" had been dropped in several mountain regions of eastern and northeastern Slovakia.

Moscow called Bulgaria's declaration of neutrality "totally insufficient" to meet the situation which has arisen, indicatiang that Bulgaria must do more in order to get out of the war.

The conclusion also was drawn from the broadcast that Bulgaria must comply with armistice demands to be presented by the United States and Britain. Bulgaria is not at war with Russia.

Germans took advantage of the time lag in Sofia's apparent preparations to accept Allied armistice terms to pull troops out of "neutral" Bulgaria and bolster Hungarian border defenses against the westward-driving Soviet army.

Both German and Russian reports said Nazi soldiers were being evacuated from Bulgaria and massed against the Red Army which already has crossed the Carpathian frontier of Hungarian Transylvania.

Reconnaissance pilots of the 15th Air Force based in Italy reported that missions over Romania had not yet shown any signs of large scale evacuation of German troops from defeated Romania into Hungary and Yugoslavia.

There was some indication instead, the reconnaissance showed, that the Germans had succeeded in regrouping a sizable force in the path of the Soviet spearhead pushing southwestward through the Galati Gap.

World Peace Agency With Teeth Aim of FDR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—A proposed world peace agency designed to have more formidable teeth than the defunct League of Nations was outlined today by President Roosevelt, who also warned against what he termed carping discussion of its details.

He said at a news conference that to lose sight of the main objective through discussion of details would lead to misunderstanding.

The world security organization under discussion by the United States, Britain and Russia at Dumbarton Oaks will be different from the old league (which the United States refused to enter) because the league's council had no means to enforce peace in the world, he said.

AGREEMENT ON OUTLINES

Roosevelt outlined the steps through which disputes which threaten peace would be handled by the future organization just a few hours after chief delegates of the three countries announced their general agreement on its outlines.

First of all, he told a news conference, a dispute would go before the world court. If it cannot be settled there, there must be a meeting place where you can talk it over, he said. He added that you could call this an assembly.

The assembly would be composed of all nations large and small, the President declared, presenting the same general blueprint decided upon at Dumbarton Oaks.

If anyone kicks over the traces and violates a frontier, Mr. Roosevelt went on, you have got to have quick action. The council of the security organization, he indicated, will have force at its disposal to move immediately in such cases.

When someone starts bombing or invading, he said, you can't have a man send out word that there will be a meeting next month.

A reporter called the President's attention to the fact that the American-Russian-British declaration issued at Dumbarton Oaks closely paralleled his own draft of this government's ideas for a peace agency on June 15.

While details are yet to be filled in, the plan follows closely President Roosevelt's brief draft of June 15 with provision for a council of the main powers and some small nations, an assembly of all "peace-loving nations," a world court, machinery for peaceful sentiment of disputes and use of force to maintain security.

Announcement of this long step toward formation of a world peace agency was made jointly at the first Dumbarton Oaks news conference since the discussions began a week ago.

Undersecretary of State Stettinius, head of the American delegation, also said that the Chinese memorandum for a security organization has been delivered to this government.

CHINA'S ATTITUDE

It is understood that the Chinese, leaning closer on this point to the Russian rather than the American or British plans, are advocating formation of an international force directly under the control of the council of the proposed organization. The Americans and British favor making national quotas or armed might available to enforce the council's decisions.

However, the Chinese draft leans towards the Anglo-Americans in emphasizing the necessity of giving an adequate voice to the small nations.

The conference communique gave no details on the establishment of force or the role of the small nations, and Stettinius replied to all requests for further information by saying that discussions are continuing.

WAR SPEEDS UP

U. S. Repeats 3 Victories In One Day

By The Associated Press

The American forces in France have taken in a single day three historic points that were fought over for months in 1918, Belleau Wood, Chateau-Thierry and Soissons.

In World War I Americans cleared Belleau Wood in counter-attacks June 6-25; Chateau-Thierry was won July 21 in the Allied counteroffensive that began July 18, and Soissons fell to the French after a three-mile advance that took them from July 18 to August 2.

Even these dates do not convey the full picture, for the area had been a battleground since the great German offensive that began May 27.

18,400 prisoners received "special treatment" which reduced the number of camp inmates by that number.

"It was an order from above, perhaps direct from Berlin," he said. "The wireless played Strauss waltzes through the camp loudspeakers all that day and most of us were told to stay in barracks. I know nothing more about it. I always gave bread and cigarets away to the prisoners."

SS Obersturmfuehrer Anton Ternes, a frog-faced man who handled Majdanek's finances, proudly referred to his age, 50, and his lieutenancy in the first World War and then declared that the mass slaughter of November 3 netted little jewelry or other valuables.

"The camp physicians told me as many as 300 children were killed in a single day," he said. "I couldn't understand the systematic killing. I told my wife when I went home on furlough about it and she said, 'God will punish the German people for the crimes they do.'"

The Russian-Polish commission said the following facts had been adduced from seized documents, from testimony of the German personnel and of surviving inmates, such as the French Communist, Fisherman Corenten Ledu of Brittany:

Majdanek housed from 30,000 to 40,000 prisoners but the turnover in three years probably exceeded 600,000.

The gas chambers were sufficient to kill 2,000 in less than seven minutes. The crematory ovens handled 1,900 corpses in a 24-hour period.

The majority of the dead were Soviet war prisoners, Poles and Jews, but every country in Europe was represented, also China.

shipping the same distance in the east. Low rates prevail on southern farm products and raw materials so that eastern manufacturers may obtain them at less cost. The south has suffered untold damage and the people have had their possible development retarded by these glaring discriminations in rates.

Gov. Arnall made one visit today which was not on the original schedule. Vice President Henry Wallace returned to Washington today from New England and, on learning Gov. Arnall was in Washington, telephoned him and asked him to visit him. This he did.

Incidentally, Mr. Wallace and Mr. Roosevelt lunched together today and had a long and friendly talk. Their friendship is unimpaired.

TO RETURN HOME

Gov. Arnall will return to Atlanta Wednesday. Claude Shaw worked all day Tuesday with the attorney general's staff and will continue here for a few days in the preparation of an amended complaint.

"I feel that we have had a most profitable visit," said Gov. Arnall, "and one which will prove of very real value to the future of Georgia."

Currie Resigns War Loan Post

Charles J. Currie stepped out of his post as War Finance Committee Chairman for Fulton and DeKalb counties and handed his duties over to Jackson P. Dick at a dinner last night at the Capitol City Club.

Currie entertained approximately 90 workers of the Fifth War Loan drive. Honored guests were three leaders of the drive, Erle Cocke, campaign chairman, Edwin A. Clement, vice chairman, and H. Stanley Hastings, chairman for DeKalb county.

Speakers at the dinner who reviewed the Fifth War Loan drive, and discussed the coming Sixth War Loan, included Currie, Cocke, R. A. McCord, new chairman of the Georgia War Finance Committee, and C. A. Stair, retiring state chairman.

Currie served as Fulton and DeKalb counties chairman from the Second through the Fifth War Loan campaign.

NAZIS FRANC-LY ADMIT TERROR

Paris Pauperizes Huns; Scot Reaps $170,000

By IRA WOLFERT.
Copyright, 1944, for The Constitution.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—(By Wireless) When the Germans left Paris they seemed to expect not only never to return in their lifetimes, but not to stop their flight from France short of the Fatherland. At least along the Place Vendome and the Due de Rivoli and in the Ritz, the Crillon, and at other fashionable places, they were selling their francs at rates which they drove up excitedly in a single afternoon from the standard of 50 to a dollar to 1,000 to a dollar.

A French financier who watched gleefully the process of swift pauperization of the Germans who had been fattening here for four years told me the rate stabilized temporarily at 1,000 francs to a dollar, but German nerves were brittle as weeds, and two days' delay in our entrance here would have pauperized the Germans down to "their underwear buttons," by sending the rate up astronomically. The franc temporarily seems solid at the standard rate of 50 to a dollar. Some nimble transactors trying to get more on the black market were balked all day today because the black market operators were waiting to see what will happen next. However, all shop, restaurant, and hotel prices here still reflect the old black market rate for francs—400 to the dollar—instead of the legal rate. This means that one pays $8 here for what one could purchase in New York for one dollar. This condition cannot last long. Either prices will have to come down, but swiftly, as if under the guillotine, or the dollar rate will have to go up. The general hope is that prices will come down, but it is impossible for this to happen without bankrupting many businesses.

Thus, being a businessman in Paris today means being involved in an adventure more reckless than most businessmen care to endure. The coming week should tell much of the story and in the meantime there are many substantial businessmen going to go to sleep tonight who will not be sure whether they will wake up poor in the morning, and there are some few who surely will become millionaires in the course of the next few days.

Some got theirs back from the Germans. Dollars and pounds emerged from musty caches for the benefit of Germans offering 1,000 francs for dollars, and more than 4,000 francs for a pound. One Scotsman I spoke to, who had been living here uninterruptedly for more than 30 years, made $170,000 by walking five blocks from his residence to the Hotel Crillon with 2,250 pounds baled up in his pockets. He got 9,000,000 francs for them.

His pounds, technically valueless at the time, now are worth $10,000, while the 9,000,000 francs he got in their place are worth $180,000.

Hallelujah, c'est la guerre!

Whistling in Order

GUAM, Aug. 17.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Here's another thing the war has changed—you can whistle on Guam now. In prewar days whistling was forbidden. An American naval governor years ago decided to make the island like a ship where only the boatswain's mate is allowed to whistle. But Marine Maj. Gen. Henry L. Larson, new island commander, changed that. "I figure we've got something to whistle about now."

LABOR DAY TRIPS OUT OF ORDER

Mayor Hartsfield has joined chief executives of other cities of the nation in urging citizens to refrain from traveling over Labor Day weekend except in cases of dire necessity.

His action was taken following receipt of a communication which J. M. Johnson, director of ODT, dispatched to Mayor La Guardia, president of the United States Conference of Mayors, in which Johnson recited that passenger traffic on railroads alone increased 22 per cent for the first five months of this year over the previous all-time high for 1943, and that intercity bus traffic increased an estimated billion passenger miles for the same period.

Johnson pointed out that organized troop movements average about 1,500 a month with an additional 200 for the Navy, and that 9,000 American casualties are being moved each month from ports to inland hospitals.

U. S. Air Power Strikes On 4,000-Mile Jap Front

PACIFIC FRONT—Japanese war chiefs appeal for more production to ward off American attacks; Navy reports new aerial strikes along 4,000-mile front.

ASIATIC FRONT—Fighting flames on five Chinese fronts; Japanese drive toward Lishui; Chinese gain near Hengyang; see-saw battle rages in Yunnan province; British wipe out Japanese rear guard in Burma.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

As the Japanese militarists urged greater war efforts to ward off the coming storm, the Navy reported new American aerial strikes over a 4,000-mile Pacific front from the Kuriles southward to the Carolines and the Marshalls.

The Yank bombers blasted airfields and other targets in the volcano islands, 750 miles south of Tokyo, in the Marianas, the western Carolines, the Marshalls and the northern Kuriles.

Furious aerial assaults were continued by Southwest Pacific fliers along the southern flank of the sea lane leading toward the Philippines. Bombers and fighters unloaded 188 tons of explosives on Ambon, Amboina island, west of Dutch New Guinea—a tonnage record for a single raid in the Moluccas or Spice islands. They left barracks, harbor works and a 3,000-ton ship in flames.

JAP REPORTS

A Tokyo dispatch, broadcast by Berlin, said American forces landed near Cape Torokina, on Bougainville island, in the Solomons, Aug. 10 but were driven off in Japanese counterattack nine days later. There was no U. S. confirmation of the report.

Relentless American pressure inside Japan's inner defense circle caused the Japanese government to ask its people for increased war production, especially aircraft. Radio Tokyo warned that hostilities "are steadily approaching the homeland," and added more plane production was needed to safeguard the empire's inner defenses.

Simultaneously Premier Koiso's government prepared to ask a special session of the diet to approve a program for the increased production of aircraft, munitions and food.

BAD NEWS FOR JAPS

Bad news for Nippon came also from Marine Maj. Gen. Henry L. Larson, commander of Guam, who disclosed that strategic Marianas island is to become a miniature Pearl Harbor—a base from which to strike the winning blows against Nippon.

Fighting continued unabated on five fronts in embattled China. American planes roared into the battle of Chekiang province where the Japanese were driving for Lishui, potential air base for raids on Japan proper. The Yank fliers also ranged the battle areas of Hupeh and Kwangtung provinces.

In Hunan Chinese forces captured another position 55 miles north of Japanese-held Hengyang. Both sides suffered heavy casualties in furious fighting at Yungfeng, 45 miles northwest of the railway junction city.

In China's Yunnan province, where the Chinese are trying to reopen the old Burma road, the battling see-sawed at the Japanese Tengchung base and in the Lungling sector.

In northern Burma British forces, pursuing the retreating Japanese southward, wiped out a strong Nippon rear guard and took the Mandalay railway town of Pinbaw.

Three GOP Governors Open Dewey's Campaign

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Gov. Earl Warren, of California, declared last night that "the Republican party does not propose to buy this election," and added it would insist "that Mr. Sidney Hillman and his committees" be barred from doing it also.

"We know that they do have in mind lavish and uncontrolled campaign expenditures in behalf of the New Deal candidates," Warren said in a radio address.

Warren's address was made in conjunction with those of two other Republican governors, Dwight Green, of Illinois, and Raymond Baldwin, of Connecticut, in opening Thomas E. Dewey's presidential campaign.

Warren declared that Hillman and his groups speak for American workers, but do not actually represent them.

Baldwin in his talk over the Blue network, assailed political bosses and said Dewey "believes in honest government by honest men, honestly arrived at."

WALLACE SEES FRD

Baldwin delivered his prepared speech from Bridgeport while Warren broadcast from Sacramento and Gov. Green spoke from Chicago.

Because of his belief "in honest government," Baldwin said, the "political bosses have staked all they've got to beat Tom Dewey. With them it's a matter of political life or political death."

Yesterday Vice President Wallace had his first post-convention talk with President Roosevelt and said afterward that he would make some speeches for the democratic ticket.

As for a future job for himself, he told reporters he could not talk about that "until after Nov. 7, and that will depend on what happens Nov. 7."

The vice president had luncheon on the south lawn with the President, but Wallace indicated that the range of conversation was limited by the presence of other guests.

Wallace said he reported to the President on his tour of New England, Texas and Georgia, and "told him about the feeling I found among the mayors about the problem that will be theirs when the boys return from overseas."

PINCHOT FOR ROOSEVELT

They only touched on politics briefly, he said.

In Little Rock, Ark., the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee issued orders for impounding of Democratic primary ballots in 14 additional Arkansas counties yesterday after a Little Rock attorney announced he was preparing to file an injunction suit challenging authority of the committee.

In Washington, Gifford Pinchot, former Republican Governor of Pennsylvania, called on President Roosevelt yesterday then announced his support of a fourth term in a statement which said:

"In this great crisis, the choice between Roosevelt and Dewey is like choosing between a veteran leader of many battles and a raw recruit who has never shouldered a rifle or fired a gun. I am for the man who knows how."

NAZIS PUT TRAP IN PUSHKIN GRAVE

MOSCOW, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The state investigating committee of German atrocities, headed by the Leningrad journalist, Nikolai Tikhanov, reported the Nazis put a booby trap in the grave of the beloved Russian poet, Alexander Pushkin.

The committee listed the names of numerous Russians who lost their lives visiting Pushkin's grave.

The Nazis were also accused of burning the church in Trigorle, Pushkin's home, where the Russian poet held funeral services for Lord Byron. The Cathedral of the Assumption at Trigorle, built by Ivan the Terrible, was blown up and the 200-year-old bell was smashed. More than 300,000 cubic meters was cut from the beautiful woods of Pushkin Park and burned by the Germans for firewood.

CRUSHED CASSINO WILL LIVE AGAIN

ROME, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Plans for the reconstruction of Cassino—theater of some of the war's most bitter fighting—have been approved and 125 one-family houses will be erected soon at the devastated town, the Allied Control Commission for Italy announced today.

Italian suggestions that the houses be equipped with modern plumbing and lighting were discarded, the commission pointing out the former houses did not have them.

The wreckage of Cassino itself will not be disturbed for the present.

Rev. Berry Called To First Christian

The Rev. Joe H. Berry, of Palestine, Texas, has been called as the permanent pastor of the First Christian church, following a congregational meeting Sunday morning.

Dr. Berry succeeds Dr. C. R. Stauffer, who died last spring after serving as pastor for 19 years. Since Dr. Stauffer's death, Dr. R. H. Crossfield, of Birmingham, Ala., has been ad interim pastor.

Reared in Kentucky, Dr. Berry attended Transylvania College and the College of the Bible at Lexington, Ky., later doing graduate work at the University of Chicago. Dr. Berry's wife and two children will move to Atlanta early in October.

Pension Board Meets

Two Fulton county police officers and one member of the county fire department were elected to a committee to represent the departments in the state legislature at a meeting of the pension board. The men named are Fred K. Stephens and J. W. Ball, of the police force, and John Burdette, of the fire department.

Basis Is Laid for World Peace Assurance

Conferees at Dumbarton Oaks, in Washington, appear to have laid the groundwork for a workable international organization to maintain the peace in future years. In a brief statement issued yesterday, the representatives of the United States, Britain and Russia made public their general agreement on the broad plan of such an organization.

The first plank in their proposal is the formation of an assembly including representatives of all peace-loving nations "based on the principle of equal sovereignty."

A numerically smaller council which, presumably, would act as a sort of executive board for the larger group, would be formed of representatives from the larger and more powerful nations, with delegates of a number of the smaller states elected periodically.

Furthermore, the conferees are agreed there must be some form of an international court of justice to adjudicate differences between nations and provision for any means necessary to enforce the maintenance of world peace and security.

It would be difficult to find any logical reason for disappointment or disagreement with this statement. It certainly provides for full representation, on the basis of equal sovereignty, of the smaller nations and it recognizes the great principles which must be accepted if there is to be reasonable hope for lasting peace.

It must be remembered the Dumbarton Oaks conference is not concerned with the terms of peace to be dictated to Germany and Japan when they surrender. Those terms are to be decided by the billigerent nations immediately concerned and will be dictated by the military commanders.

What the Dumbarton Oaks conference is dealing with is something entirely different, the creation of a world-wide agreement of co-operation among all peace-loving nations and the formation of machinery to enforce peace upon any future national disturbers. In other words, to make war an international crime, legally recognized as such; to provide a world peace force to guard against any commission of that crime, and to provide just punishment for those who do violate that law.

With this understanding of the functions of the present meetings, it can only be said the Dumbarton Oaks conferees have done well as far as they have gone.

Whatever specific recommendations the conference may make must, of necessity, be approved by their various governments before they can be made public as accomplished fact.

The work of the conference is of vital importance. We must not forget, however, that complete victory in battle is the first duty, that conditions making it impossible for Germany or Japan to again attack the world is the second requirement, and that it is only after these first duties have been achieved that there can be any real peace to be maintained.

There is good reason to believe the world has learned its lesson and, this time, there will be no repetition of the fatuous folly which lost us the peace after we had won the first World War.

The Dumbarton Oaks conferees have taken the first steps along the right road. It is the duty of good men everywhere to aid, by their approval, continued progress along that road to peace.

Air Patrols May Be Forest-Fire Answer

It is to be hoped that the next legislature will go thoroughly into State Forester J. M. Timker's proposal to utilize airplanes in Georgia's important forest-fire prevention program.

It is, to be sure, a novel idea. But it is a logical and, quite probably, a practical one.

Every county in the state, if we are to stamp out costly forest fires in Georgia, would have to have at least one fire tower and two or three full-time watchmen. Yet the same results, says Timker, can be obtained through the use of several airplanes cruising over timbered areas on regular schedule.

After the war, when surplus planes and trained pilots are available, the air patrol plan might prove the real answer to the state's multi-million-dollar forest-fire dilemma.

Missouri Valley Authority Next?

TVA's David Lilienthal recently prophesied that his big experimental project in the Tennessee valley would become the model for agricultural and industrial development, not only in these United States, but throughout the world.

Now it begins to look as though his prophecy would come true sooner than even the most optimistic had hoped.

For a measure has been formulated and introduced in congress . . . S. B. 2089 . . . which would create the Missouri Valley Authority along identical lines with the TVA but, of course, on an even larger scale.

The measure is both interesting and important.

It is interesting because it shows that at least some members of a once-critical congress have been sufficiently impressed by TVA and its accomplishments to wish to have the plan adopted in other sections.

It is important because, if the measure is adopted, it will take up much of the labor slack which is bound to occur between the end of the war and the resumption of private industry . . . and may, if continued long enough, take up some of that unemployment which always exists in this country during normal times.

The nation, right now, needs another project such as the TVA.

It needs to do some long-range thinking, planning and building if the ghost of national unemployment and the specter of another depression are to be laid. And what better improvement than an MVA, patterned along the TVA's successful lines and designed to improve the status of a dozen states and some odd millions of Americans?

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

"Much Pleased"

Editor, Constitution: When I picked up my Constitution and saw its new face this morning I was much pleased.

My congratulations upon your fine improvement. The reading is easier and certainly makes your paper stand out.

ARNOLD MITCHELL.
Atlanta.

Please Go Back

Editor, Constitution: Why did you change the print in The Constitution? I, for one, liked it much better as it was. I have been reading The Constitution for a good while and now it doesn't seem like the same paper. Please go back to the old style print.

MIMS C. AULTMAN.
Meigs, Ga.

P. S.: I still enjoy the editorial pages, though. I think they are the best.

Pleased

Editor, Constitution: I guess you will receive many letters about the new type used in The Constitution, but to be frank with you, when I went down to get my Constitution this morning I was very pleased at the new type and display that you are now carrying in your paper. It is much easier to read and I like it a lot. I congratulate whoever is responsible sincerely.

JOHN L. CONNOR.
Atlanta.

"New High"

Editor, Constitution: Congratulations on the new type and the more attractive makeup throughout. The Constitution has reached a new high in reader appeal.

H. B. PRESTON.
Columbus, Ga.

Bad For Monday

Editor, Constitution: We picked up our copy of The Atlanta Constitution this morning at the breakfast table while feeling about like everybody does on Monday morning. We gave one look at the front page. It did not look right. We decided to wait until we had our cup of coffee. After the coffee it still looked the same way. This afternoon we looked at it again. Maybe we will get used to the change in type that gives the paper an altogether different look, but the next time don't slip up on us on Monday morning.

MISS HARRIETTE BURSON,
Editor, the Camilla Enterprise.

Farrar?

Editor, Constitution: Congratulations on the new typography. A good paper looks better. These changes seem to reflect the handiwork of one Gilbert Farrar. He is, of course, one of the best.

JOHN E. DREWRY.
Dean, Henry Grady School of Journalism, Athens.

(Editor's note: Mr. Drewry's trained eye is correct. The Constitution's new typography was indeed designed by the nationally known authority, Gilbert Farrar.)

Where the Blame?

Editor, Constitution; I have read Westbrook Pegler's column where he blames the President and the FBI for the Pearl Harbor attack.

If Mr. Pegler will check with the Congressional Record from the time the President took office until the present time he will find how the President pleaded time and again for arms and things to ward off such an attack but congress and the public would not listen to him.

No, the blame is on the shoulders of 495 congressmen and 96 senators and no one else. Believe it or not.

A Calomel Course In Political History

WASHINGTON.—A little political history is as good for the liver as a good course of calomel.

Judging from some of the writings I have seen of late, and also some of the ads, some of our people are very liverish indeed.

I have in mind particularly those who insist the Democratic party is not the Democratic party, but something else. A recent piece I read was addressed to "all red-blooded Americans."

That let me right in the door, as I have learned in my trips to the Red Cross blood donor service that my blood is red. The first time I was shocked. I bore up bravely.

"I am sure," I told the red-headed nurse who was watching my red blood run out into the jar, "that generations ago in Scotland it was blue blood but somewhere along the line we got mixed up with some good, honest yeoman blood and now it is red."

Anyhow, that's how I know any piece addressed to "red-blooded Americans" is meant to include me.

So, let's all sit down and discuss this matter for a while. It is the Democratic party. It may or may not win in November. I think, and hope it will, being a Democrat. But let's have a little talk.

The Present What we are going through, of course, is something that started a long time ago. If you don't like to call it a revolution, call it something else. But all I ask you to do is to keep in mind that a lot of things have happened to many, many peoples. You may see the thread of it in Mexico's history for the past 30 years; in the Russian developments making their system a sort of socio-capitalism in which those who do the best work make the most money. You may see it in India's turbulence and in the state of mind which enabled Hitler and Mussolini to gain power. As education and information collapse. Spain fought a civil war because of it. All around this world nations were stirring, thinking, demanding.

The earth has many good things. I doubt if ever again, for any great length of time, it will be possible to fail to distribute those things more equitably than in the past.

At any rate, it is ridiculous to think this nation could escape it. This thing is not at all a matter of being for Mr. Roosevelt or against him. He did not create what is known as the New Deal. It was the feeling of the people which gave him a tremendous support when he made articulate their own feelings.

We escaped violence for a long, long time. How close we were to it in the dark days of 1932-33-34 no one knows. But we were close.

Whether we like it or not, we are part of the world.

If Mr. Dewey chooses to swim against the course of world tides, he will be defeated. He indicates he knows that and, even if he does not so believe, he is going to swim with it.

In 1865 Let's go back. The Republican party emerged from the War Between the States with a vice-like grip on the country. The Democratic party was wrecked. (It did not win again until 1884.)

What made up the Democratic party in the period after the War Between the States?

These factors, and these only—the New York City masses, who had remained Democratic all through the war, the underprivileged of town and country, and the defeated South.

The party has always had those same elements—big-city masses, the underprivileged of city and farm, and the south. I will admit this is a heterogenous mixture, but it is an ancient mixture. It was then, as it is today, the texture of the party.

Now and then one of these elements will become more powerful in party affairs. Just now some are alarmed because of the CIO Political Action Committee. (Incidentally, let it be kept in mind neither the CIO nor the PAC claim to be Democrats. They are supporting the party's nominees. Also, no one can "deliver" the labor vote.)

In the time of William Jennings Bryan it was the farmer and labor who joined to become strong in the Democratic party. Georgia knows of this through Tom Watson's Populists who left the party, but who came back to it strong enough to dictate to it nationally, not locally. The Populists were much stronger, and just as hated by party conservatives as the CIO is hated by conservatives today.

The Populists indorsed Bryan in 1900 and ministers joined politicians in fulminating against them as an evil influence. Had not Bryan said, "You must not press down on labor this crown of thorns?" The Democratic platform was denounced, in 1896, as "made in hell." Bryan was called a "lunatic," a "Communist" who would destroy property rights and ruin business."

There are many other historical examples. This one will do. It always has been a party of discordant elements which vie for power.

So, leave it if you will. You will come back. It may decline in the years ahead. If so, it will rise again. It is the party of the people and as such it has done the best job for them.

The Democratic party—now and always—long may she wave.

Emotional Reactions Hard to Understand

In these days of the most dramatic making of history in all the long record of mankind, personal emotions sometimes react in inexplicable ways. Take, for instance, comparison of reaction to the news that Paris had been taken by the Germans, four years ago, and the news, last week, of the liberation of Paris.

Four years ago the news brought unutterable gloom, darkly tinged with fear as to what would happen next. Paris, the Paris which had been successfully defended in the first World War, had fallen. The city symbolic of gaiety and civilization was in the hands of the sullen Huns, the barbarians of brutality. It was the great tragedy, the great symbol of a world well loved which seemed to be crumbling into dust.

What was the reaction of the nerves? None, to notice. There was the sorrow and the gloom, there was the sense of impending despair, with only a faint faith to keep alive a tiny spark in the surrounding darkness. But, outwardly, nothing showed. There was no whiteness of face, no eyes filled with tears. We took it in stride and went normally upon our normal course of duty.

Now, It Is Different Now, Paris is liberated. The Germans have been driven out. Paris is once more France. Paris is Paris, again.

So, listening to the broadcasts which told of the wild joy on the streets of Paris, new emotions took hold of the spirit.

We heard the wild shouting of the crowds and we heard them singing "La Marseillaise." Off-key, to be sure, but loudly with the thrill of people who had passed for four years through the valley of the shadow of death and had at last emerged into the sunshine of liberty restored.

We heard voices, hoarse from shouting, crying "Vive La France!" and we heard the rustle and the stirrings of the crowds.

We listened as announcers told of the battle inside Notre Dame, even as the mass went on, and we cringed with the crowds along the famous streets as snipers' machineguns poured their treacherous bullets into the throngs who had come to witness the parade.

And what was our emotional reaction? Why, our eyes filled with tears and the throat became constricted. We were so proud and so thrilled and so moved by the joy of the again Free French that the tears could not be restrained.

How do you account for it? Dry-eyed at the announcement of tragic defeat, tears at the news of a new day of joy for a liberated city.

To Settle Dispute The liberation of France will, among other things, settle one problem in the only way it could be properly settled. That is, the future of General Charles De Gaulle.

Soon it won't matter whether we, and our allies, recognize the De Gaulle committee, at Algiers, as the de facto government of France or not. Soon that point will be definitely settled by brave and patriotic Frenchmen themselves. They will be free to make their own choice of government and of leaders and, whether that choice be De Gaulle and his committee or not we will, of course, accept their decision.

What is happening in France is but the forerunner of what will happen in the other countries as they are freed of the German yoke. The people of Poland will decide whether they want the exiled Polish government in London to represent them or whether they prefer the committee set up in Russia.

The people of Yugoslavia will themselves determine whether Mikhailovitch or Tito is the man worthy of leadership.

One thing is foregone. That is, there will be no chance for the quislings. Their fate is not pleasant to contemplate. But, as freedom returns, the men who betrayed their own countries in order to curry favor with the temporary conqueror will wish, as they die, they had known better.

How long before the war in Europe is over? None can say. The British are more optimistic than we are. They say within the next 30 days. Even our own military leaders still believe it can be won this year.

Some have feared the Germans, once driven back to their soil, will be able to revert to the trench warfare of the last war and thus hold out for many months.

Don't forget, though, this is a far different war than any of older days. Trenches which were impregnable 25 years ago will quickly fall before the weight of modern armor and under the pulverizing attack of modern battalions of the air.

No, I don't believe any trenches can long delay the march of our tanks and armored trucks into Germany.

Remember, the Maginot line could not stop the Germans. Nor can any fixed defenses stop us.

The pen CAN be mightier

ROBERT QUILLEN

France Has Had Difficult Time

France, like every other nation, was built by many races. We think of America as the only melting pot because we have seen it in operation, but this same process developed every race of whose early history we have knowledge.

The invading Romans, mingling their blood with the native populations generation after generation, made France forever Latin. But other invaders and settlers—the Greeks, who built Marseilles and the Norsemen who settled in Normandy—filled the land with clashing temperaments and conflicting attributes and qualities that made eternal strife almost inevitable.

And bloody internal strife is the sad history of France from the earliest times to this very day. Century after century, even in brief periods of glory, the people have crippled their country by cutting one another's throats.

In the year 1000 and thereabouts, France was only a small duchy on the lower Seine and the lower Loire. The great barons who ruled Aquitaine, Toulouse, Burgandy, Champagne, Normany and Flanders paid the king no more than grudging lip service. In 1066, William of Normandy was strong enough to invade and conquer England.

For generations the story of France was the endless effort of its kings to subdue the baronies and unite them into one great nation. The big men fought for power, and the little men died for their masters.

Eventually France was united into one kingdom, but bloody strife continued almost without respite. There was war between the barons and town people, between nobles and commons, between rich and poor, between city and country, between Catholics and Protestants. If other torments ceased, there was always an ambitious or amorous fool on the throne to waste the nation's substance on senseless wars or smart mistresses.

All through the centuries the little people toiled in the fields and in the factories, producing wealth, living on crusts, saving every sou, while big people wasted and strife destroyed and conflict tore down the work of the builders.

The story of France is the story of mankind. Nations with conflicting ideas and interests have never learned to compromise and cooperate, and so have continually crippled themselves to injure one another—wasting in conflict all that art and industry have built and all that thrift has accumulated. If we do not learn better this time, the next madness will probably finish civilization.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

Plainly Stated

(George McNabb in Newnan Herald)

When you have something to say, there are always a good many ways of saying it, but if you can be plain and simple and at the same time slip a punch into it, you have something. Anyhow, that is the thought we pull out of a report by John Perryman from a recent trip to Atlanta.

What he was doing there we don't know, but John reports seeing this sign in a small colored cafe:

"DEM DAT AIN'T GOT NO MONEY IS DONE ET"

Sagging Homefront Gets New Support

Future historians, if all other reference to the war be destroyed, may well be confused, examining Madam's silhouette in this period's fashion magazines, as to the exact date upon which peace came.

For, on August 26, the Office of Rubber Director finally lifted restrictions on the use of high-grade synthetics in girdles and I would not be surprised, if they rely on visual evidence, if historians conclude that it was on that day that victory was won.

Seriously, this is big news, spelling, as it does, new support on the homefront. And rear.

It's been a long, long war and many a patriotic matron who has had no trouble keeping her chin up has been experiencing difficulty keeping her tummy in.

It takes more than destiny to shape many of our ends and most of the garments designed for the purpose have given way in the long stretch.

And it was small comfort to bulgers that, as the foundations of the Axis sagged and broke, foundations on the homefront were doing the same.

Guns AND butter, Hitler promised the Germans. But Uncle Sam has gone him one better with girds for war and girdles for peace . . . of mind.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

US To Enjoy Period Of Real Prosperity

WASHINGTON.—In considering the economic outlook after the war, too little attention has been given to the position which the United States will occupy as the world's greatest source of industrial production.

Due to the devastation wrought in Europe, some of our economists are pointing out that the demand for American-made goods will be sufficient to tax our production facilities to the limit, and for an indefinite period.

Not even all of our new plant facilities, erected by the government as a war measure at a cost of billions of dollars, will be adequate to supply the demand, if a proper means is found for the exchange of world goods.

This rosy outlook for American industry grows out of the fact that the United States, alone of all the great nations engaged in the war, will emerge from the conflict with its industrial machine intact.

We will be practically the only nation capable of producing more than our domestic needs require.

With the possible exception of England, which itself has been hard hit by robots and bombs, all of the others will take years to rebuild their industrial equipment to a point where they can supply national needs.

Germany, which before the war was the leading industrial nation of Europe, will be nonexistent so far as its capacity for immediate production is concerned. When our bombers get through with the country there will be little left as a nucleus for industrial development.

France and Italy will be much in the same position. During the period of German occupation our bombers made targets of their chief sources of industrial production. The Nazis, in moving out, have sought to destroy what was left from Allied air raids.

Russia, while managing to build beyond the Urals a new industrial empire capable of meeting most of her war needs, saw most of her highly industrialized area overrun and destroyed by Hitler before the Nazi hordes were turned back. It is doubtful that she will be able to produce enough to meet her normal requirements for a great many years after the war.

That leaves the United States the chief source of world production, Britain being in little better position than Russia.

Good Demand But to stop here, as the economists point, is to leave the story only half told. It is not only that we will emerge from the war as the only major nation with its industrial machine untouched by the ravages of the conflict, but the world's latent demand for goods will be the greatest ever known to history.

This demand will arise from two causes: (1) The accumulated shortage of durable peace goods created by the fact that practically all industry in the belligerent nations has been operating on a war basis for the past several years. And (2) the toll taken by the war of equipment and materials which will have to be replaced when peace comes.

To cite what has taken place in the United States since Pearl Harbor, for example: There have been no automobiles or radios, trucks or sewing machines made here for two and a half years, except for military purposes. The list could be extended indefinitely.

Here is a huge backlog of demand being built up and waiting for a ready market. That demand will be even greater in Europe, because much of its facilities for making these things has been destroyed.

If the barriers to a free flow of our goods abroad can be removed, we are faced with prospects for the greatest market for American goods ever witnessed in the history of the nation—enough to keep the wheels of industry humming for years to come.

HAROLD MARTIN

You Learn Weapons And How to Use Them

QUANTICO.—The week on the rifle range, which is the fifth week of your training as a Marine officer, is a good week for two reasons. One is because for the first time you begin to understand what that marvelously fashioned weapon of steel and polished walnut, the U. S. rifle, 30-caliber, M-1, is really for.

Heretofore you had known it merely as something you had to clean and oil religiously, probing its innards with a toothbrush and pipe cleaner to get at hidden specks of dust, rubbing its every metal surface clean of the rust which thrives in Quantico's humid climate, and, with gun oil for the steel, linseed for the wood and neatsfoot for the leather sling, in general keeping it as clean and smooth in all its working parts as new money.

But you didn't know it really, and appreciate it for what it is, the most efficient killing device ever created for the use of the individual soldier—until for the first time you fired it on the range.

There you lay down with it on the ground, strapped its sling tightly around your left arm, cradle it on the solid bones of your forearms, cuddle the smooth stock against your cheek, set the pinpoint bullseye 500 yards away exactly on the top of the front sight, which itself split with mathematical precision the exact center of the rear sight, draw in a breath, let out a little and held it, and slowwwwwlllllly, locked in position, you let the soft pad of your first finger squeeze the trigger until you felt her jump in your arms and the bullet was gone.

Maybe you got a bull and down in the butts they put up the white disc. Maybe they waved the red flag, the ignoble "Maggie's Drawers," which signals a clean miss. It didn't matter much. You had fired your rifle and you knew that whatever happened it wasn't her fault. You hear lots of cussing along a firing line, when the red flags are waving, but you never hear a man cussing his rifle. He is swearing at himself for flinching, or for jerking the trigger, or for not holding her on, or for not figuring his windage right, or for forgetting to turn the elevating screw when he moved back from 300 yards. But to a good Marine his rifle can do no wrong.

You fire a great deal in your week on the rifle range, and the other good thing about it is the rest you get. You do not use muscles for shooting. You use brain, and a supreme concentration, and while waiting to fire you lie at ease in the grass, chewing straws and talking of this and that, and getting, for the first time since you've been at Quantico, a breathing spell.

You learn of other weapons, too. The .45 pistol, for instance, which is a willful and cantankerous hussy that will break your heart, throwing slugs all over the countryside one day, and the next behaving so beautifully that, to your own surprise you come off the range with a score that earns you an expert medal.

You fire the carbine, which is a lady, beautiful, precise and trim, a tiny little thing, but of wondrous deadliness up to 300 yards, and such a pleasure to fire that you could lie there in the hot dust all day, pumping away as gleefully as a small boy with his first air rifle.

You learn these things about your weapons and make the acquaintance of the men who tutor you in their use, who in themselves are as fascinating, and about as deadly, as the rifles. I refer to the gunnery sergeants, the Leathernecks of the authentic breed, the career Marines of noncommissioned rating who make up, in war and peace, the backbone of the corps.

There are not many of them, for in peace time the corps is small, and in war it is, by necessity, they who shall be the first to die, for they go into the earliest battles before the replacements start pouring in from the boot camps.

They are lean and bronzed and moustached and profane and they do not love second lieutenants, looking upon them, no doubt, somewhat as a panther might contemplate a fat house-cat. But they know rifles and the mysteries of shooting them with precision, and they know how to teach these mysteries to others.

And between the two of them, the rifle itself and the gunnery sergeants with their inflexible axiom of "Hold 'em on and squeeze 'em off," and see some amazingly good shooting by men who may never have fired even a cap pistol before.

LOUIS BROMFIELD

New York No Longer Useful As Nation's Political Pulse

Each time I visit New York city I am impressed a little more by its remoteness from the rest of the nation and the fact that its influence upon the nation has waned almost steadily for the past ten years. Having known it very well for more than 20 years without, save for a brief time, having been a resident, has allowed me a certain objectivity regarding the changes that have taken place there.

Once, it could be said justly that aside from the functioning of federal government, it was the true capital of the United States. Today, I think few people will deny, Washington has become in almost all senses the capital of the nation. Once the condition of the stock market in New York was popularly regarded as the perfect index to the economic condition of the nation. That, certainly, is no longer true. Nowadays one looks to the true sources—industrial and U. S. Treasury reports, agricultural prices, unemployment figures, to discover the economic temperature of the country. Once the majority of the American people were concerned with daily reports in a colossal game of chance carried on in Wall street in which the people were always the victims. That, too, is no longer true.

Once it was virtually necessary to go to New York if you wanted to hear the best symphonic music, the best opera, the best plays with the best casts. Nowhere else in America did the extravagant, glamorous world of which Ziegfeld will forever remain the symbol, exist. But none of these facts are any longer valid. There are as good or better symphony orchestras in a dozen cities in America. The Metropolitan Opera Company makes annual tours which are likely to turn out more profitably than its own deficit season in New York. With every successful play, there are road companies touring the nation in which, very often, the cast is superior to the original New York cast. There are no more rich stock brokers, no more Rolls-Royces waiting for showgirls outside the stage door of the New Amsterdam or the Ziegfeld theater. Broadway itself looks more like the Midway at Coney Island than a world famous street in the capital of America. Even New York's mayor is a part exhibitionist, part reformer, part eccentric. In proportion to size, no city in America has fewer war industries than New York.

It is true that hotels are filled with people today and that night clubs and theaters are doing a wholesale business, but they are filled largely with people who have money for the first time in nearly a generation and by people who have come to New York out of curiosity, lured by the legend of what New York has been in the past. And there are a lot of refugees who will return to Europe at the earliest possible moment. I am not at all certain that the night life of Chicago or San Francisco or Hollywood is not a good deal more entertaining.

It is true that the clothing industry has its center in New York city and that certain great corporations maintain offices there. It is true, too, that New York city is still a great shipping port, but the city is no longer what it was 20 or even 10 years ago or even five. New York and east coast interests will do well to continue to fight against a deep-water shipping channel between the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes, for if the day ever comes when heavy tankers and freight boats can dock in Cleveland, Detroit or Chicago or even Duluth, or when one can sail direct from Chicago or Cleveland to Southampton or Havre, the results for New York as a port city will be disastrous indeed.

The truth is that this country is too great and varied a country ever to be dominated culturally or economically or politically by one great city as England is dominated by London or France by Paris. I suspect that as the nation comes of age its center is naturally shifting away from a remote, east coast town into the center of the country. With the rise of Russia and China and the decline of Europe and the new national interests in the Pacific, the pull is certain to be away from the Atlantic coast. The day is not too far distant when a family can get into an automobile in Indiana or Alabama or California or Massachusetts and drive to Moscow and thence to Europe. Only five miles of water separate Alaska from Russia and roads are already built or in the process of construction. And there is the whole alarming business of plane transportation. I should not myself like to be a long-term investor in New York city real estate.

These are things to think about. They are all a part of the changing, shrinking world of which we are a part, in which the changes are so rapid that it is difficult to understand them or use them as a basis for understanding the future.

US To Try Communists?

NEW YORK.—Reporters in France tell of the execution of French women and men who were deemed to have collaborated with the Nazis and of women shorn as a mark of disgrace. The trials must have been informal and emotional, and there runs through the dispatches a strong suggestion that the Communists of France now are sitting as judges of patriotism to a country which they themselves betrayed in the days of the phony war and on down to the fall.

In the Herald Tribune, John Chabot Smith, writing from Marseille, says the French forces of the interior, after seizing a town, install a local government consisting of the Council of Liberation or men named by the council. The council, he says, includes a representative from each of the six principal political groups, including the Communist.

That the Communists in France, as here, fight desperately for Communism no man will deny. Like the Nazis, they are political fanatics and as cruel, wanton, devious and treacherous. They have so much in common that not long ago before the war some American writers who had studied history in process in Germany were calling the Nazis Brown Bolsheviks.

But it is a fact, nevertheless, that they were traitors to France and would have opened the gates from the inside to let the Nazis in without a fight, just as the Communists in the United States did all they could to keep this country unarmed and helpless until June, 1941. President Roosevelt himself flatly accused the American Communists of this when he sent a regiment of the regular Army to Inglewood, Cal., to drive their terrorists from the gates of one of our most important airplane factories so that the Americans could get to their jobs. Elmer Davis, of the OWI, said that in the absence of more exact information he would regard as a Communist anyone who opposed our rearming program prior to Hitler's attack on Russia but changed overnight when the Berlin-Moscow alliance broke.

To refresh our memory of the conduct of the American Communists during that time we may refer to the files of some of the house organs of the CIO unions which were then (and remain today Communist fronts, controlled by clever and indefatigable Communist minorities). The Daily Worker is another reliable reference.

The Communists in France were worse than useless in the French army facing the Germans. They not only wouldn't fight the Nazis, but they made more ghastly the desperate position of those Frenchmen who did fight and many of whom died. They were saboteurs in the factories and ports and collaborationists in far more deadly and tragic ways while there was still a chance of survival than those who, during the long dark night since the fall, lost hope of rescue and simply submitted.

French politics has been so horribly corrupt and confused that even before the war few Americans had the confidence in their judgment to boast that they understood. But undoubtedly there were Royalists and Fascists of varying degrees who saw the situation as a choice between Fascism and Communism and, after the collapse, went fast or collaborationist.

But there was one certainty during all that time down to the collapse. The Communists were active, aggressive traitors who stabbed their own country in the back just as surely as Mussolini did, and only after the foul deed was done and the Nazis were in, suddenly turned patriots because Russia, their spiritual homeland, was in danger. Their purpose was not to rescue France but to help Russia by harassing the Nazis in France.

That such people should now be able to hound and condemn and execute others, even though some of the accused actually were traitors, is a hideous irony and an injustice to the American and British fighters who drove the German sout. For these American and British soldiers, too, were betrayed by the Communists and now find French Communists expointing their victory.

It will not be so, apparently, but surely these traitors, too, should be called to trial. Instead we find them participating in the control of the nation they helped the Nazis to humiliate and torture beyond respect of recovery within that term which President Roosevelt calls the foreseeable future.

SENATOR SOAPER

At Rennes a surrendered garrison of Nazis was told to find its own way to the rear, which is almost as humiliating as having to stand in the patrol wagon.

Already the campaign moves from the realm of dark intention to overt threat. Whether Dewey wants it or not, he will get Ham Fish's vote.

From victory unto victory goes the somewhat amazing Brownie ball team of St. Louis. It must be true what they say, about the meek inheriting the earth.

We don't understand Turkey, or what that Turkish father of quintuplets who gave them away instead of rushing out for more ration books.

"Prisoners escape, dressed in women's clothes."
—News item.

For many moons the frenzied men have viewed with some dismay
The way the ladies' fashions got more "he-man," day by day.
There was a time when you could spot a woman at a glance,
But that was long before the day they started wearing pants;
And now the meek and humble man must rise before the dawn
Or some female in the family will have his breeches on.
By slow and steady progress she has pushed the man aside,
Become the boss and grabbed his job and humbled him in pride.
And as old Shakespeare aptly said . . . "No age or custom stales
Her infinite variety" . . . for dressing like the males.
And if the trend continues at it's present hurried pace
The men will sing soprano and the girls will warble bass.
Back in the days of long ago, when men controlled the votes,
A lady wasn't dressed without a dozen petticoats,
A pair of those long-handled gloves, a full and flowing veil;
But now we doubt that you can find such articles for sale—
The more she got her liberties the more she was obsessed
With the feeling that a lady should be very much undressed . . .

The prisoners' escaping doesn't cause us much surprise,
But we wonder how they got away with such a thin disguise.

Communique From the Pacific

Our start for Tarawa was delayed by a slight accident. Walking out to the plane I pulled my ripcord too soon. The wind caught my parachute and it took a rescue squad two hours to get me down out of the control tower.

We had an experience at Tarawa that touched us all. After doing our show at a little theater built on the beach, the same beach where our Marines fought one of the toughest fights in our history, we were invited to see a picture.

The picture was: The Battle for Tarawa. On the runway behind the screen, planes were taking off continually. Besides the little "theater" were graves of men who died there.

The realism of the film was brought home to us when we walked back to our quarters past white crosses. Those white crosses don't add anything to the beauty of Tarawa.

During the afternoon before the show we had a wonderful time playing baseball with some of the boys.

Frances Langford and Patty Thomas also played. I played eight innings before I found out I was the only one who cared who won.

GALLUP POLL

Republicans, Not Democrats, Worried Over FDR's Health

PRINCETON, N. J.—A favorite topic of conversation these days at dinner tables, bridge games and among politicians in the back room, is the state of President Roosevelt's health.

To get some indication of the extent to which information and misinformation emanating from Washington on this subject may have penetrated public thinking, a nation-wide study has just been completed by the Institute.

This survey reveals the curious fact that people's theories on the President's health depend to a very large extent on whether they themselves are Republicans or Democrats.

The majority of Democrats with opinions say the President's health is fine—couldn't be better. They willingly accept the statement of the President's personal physician that his physical condition is sound. On the other hand, the majority of Republicans with opinions say that the health of the chief executive is not so good.

However, a very substantial number of Republicans are willing to admit that the President's health would permit him to carry on if he is re-elected.

The manner in which party preference affects one's judgment of the President's health was revealed when interviewers for the Institute put the following question to a true crosssection of voters:

"Do you think that President Roosevelt's health will or will not permit him to carry on the responsibility of the presidency for another four years?"

Among those expressing an opinion, the vote by parties follows:

	Roosevelt Voters	Dewey Voters
Think President's Health Will Permit Him to Carry On	84%	47%
Think not	16	53

The combined tabulation of all replies—from Republicans, Democrats, members of minor parties, and persons undecided as yet how they will vote—found that a majority of 2-to-1 with opinions think the President's health will present no obstacle to his carrying on if he wins in November.

ALL VOTERS

Think President's Health Will Permit Him To Carry On	66%
Think Not	34

For the nation as a whole, 23 per cent expressed no opinion.

Mr. Roosevelt, noted for his keen sense of humor, will get a chuckle out of the following four comments, more or less typical of many gathered from voters in the poll.

"He's a tough old rooster."

"Can't kill him with politics."

"He'll be in there pitching when half of his critics are six feet under."

"That man is too ornery to die."

Psychosis in Race Horses Is Really Nothing New at All

When I am in southern California I throw all my sick-dog business to Dr. Eugene C. Jones, a smallish gentleman of highly professional manner, because he has a pet hospital of such appointment and sterilized atmosphere that I am hoping to later sneak in a few of my ailing friends, hospital accommodations in S. C. being mighty scarce these days.

I used to be real handy at doctoring up hunting dogs and pit bulls and just plain dogs, but when these house critters like Nubbin, the little red cock Spaniel, fall ill I send them to an expert because what could I get if I tried to help one and missed?

I could get plenty of hell, that is what I could get. Period.

So I told the lady to take Nubbin to Dr. Jones, and she came back real excited because it seems that besides giving the doc a rundown on Nubbin's dopey demeanor and refusal to eat filet mignon and pate de foi gras she threw in a narration of the little dog's habit of taking one of the lady's bedroom slippers, called "mules," or an article belonging to the lady that it can get hold of and lie in a secluded spot with its head on the article all day long.

"And what do you think?" the lady said. "Dr. Jones says Nubbin has a psychosis. He says the veterinarians are making quite a study of that now. We have got to give her B-1 vitamins. That will equalize her emotions and bring about a more normal state. Aren't you surprised?"

"At what?" I inquired, "the vitamins?"

"At Nubbin's psychosis," replied the lady.

I said uh-huh because I did not want to let her down on her news, but as a matter of fact I was not greatly surprised. According to the dictionary, psychosis is any psychic process or condition, whether in man or the lower animals, and I have long been a close observer of such condition in both. I mean man and the lower animals, with special reference to race horses.

I never bothered much about studying dogs, though the fat one called Sissy has struck me as being a bit on the simple side because she does nothing but eat and sleep. She will eat as long as there is a morsel to eat in sight. She will eat when it is obviously an effort to her and no pleasure. She reminds me of a rolly-polly dame who knows she should refrain from eating but just can not help it.

Now psychosis in many race horses manifests itself in their friendship for boats or chickens or other critters, without which the horse is very restless. They correspond, I suppose, to Nubbin's "mules." The great Whirlaway had to be escorted to the post by his own lead pony, which was obviously a form of equine psychosis, because it was difficult to get him there without the pony.

Some of these horses will refuse to eat and lose weight when their favorite companions are kept from them. The late "Hummin' Bob" Smith once told me about a horse he trained by the name of Articulate that loved a mouse that hung around its stall and when this little mouse was carefully effaced by a stable hand one day the horse was greatly put out and wouldn't run a lick until they got another mouse, this time a white one. Bob said Articulate was color blind. I guess maybe he was spoofing me.

I think Articulate was one of the best named horses that ever raced on American turf. He was out of an imported mare called Utter. Old Bob liked neat names. I am sure he had something to do with the Superlative title that Mrs. Dodge Sloan, for whom Bob was training, applied to a foal by American Flag out of Golden Melody.

The title was National Anthem.

I had a horse once named So Sorry that I bought for $400 out of a yearling sale at Saratoga. It was by Big Blaze out of that good mare Taps, and I gave her to a farmer in New Hampshire because this horse developed a psychosis at a very early age.

This horse's psychosis took the form of an aversion to getting in front of other horses. I suppose if we had had time to analyze the emotional history of the horse we might have found why and corrected the matter, though remembering So Sorry's lack of speed I do not see how.

Paris' Jubilation Defies Description

PARIS.—(By Wireless)—The other correspondents have written so thoroughly and so well about the fantastic eruption of mass joy when Paris was liberated that I shall not dwell on it much longer.

But there are some little things I have to get out of my system, so we'll have at least this one more column on it.

Actually the thing has floored most of us. I know that I have felt totally incapable of reporting it to you. It was so big I felt inadequate to touch it. I didn't know where to start or what to say. The words you put down about it sound feeble to the point of asininity.

I'm not alone in this feeling, for I've heard a dozen other correspondents say the same thing. A good many of us feel we have failed in properly presenting the loveliest, brightest story of our time. It could be that this is because we have been so unused, for so long, to anything bright.

At any rate let's go back to the demonstration. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon until darkness around 10, we few Americans in Paris on that first day were kissed and hauled and mauled by friendly mobs until we hardly knew where we were.

Everybody kissed you—little children, old women, grown-up men, beautiful girls. They jumped and squealed and pushed in a literal frenzy.

They pinned bright little flags and badges all over you. Amateur cameramen took pictures. They tossed flowers and friendly tomatoes into your jeep. One little girl even threw a bottle of cider into ours.

As you drove along, gigantic masses of waving and screaming humanity clapped their hands as though applauding a fine performance in a theater. We in the jeeps smiled back until we had set grins on our faces. We waved until our arms gave out, and then we just waggled our fingers. We shook hands until our hands were bruised and scratched. If the jeep stopped you were swamped instantly. Those who couldn't reach you threw kisses at you, and we threw kisses back.

They sang songs. They sang wonderful French songs we had never heard. And they sang "Tipperary" and "Madelon" and "Over There" and the "Marseillaise."

French policemen saluted formally but smilingly as we passed. The French tanks that went in ahead of us pulled over to sidewalks and were immediately swarmed over.

And then some weird cell in the mystic human makeup caused people to start wanting autographs. It began the first evening, and by the next day had grown to unbelievable proportions. Everybody wanted every soldier's autograph.

They shoved notebooks and papers at you to sign. It was just like Hollywood. One woman, on the second day, had a stack of neat little white slips, surely 300 of them, for people to sign.

That first afternoon only the main streets into the city were open and used, and they were packed with humanity. The side streets were roped off and deserted, because the Germans had feeble fortifications and some snipers there.

The weather was marvelous for Liberation Day, and for the next day, too. For two days previously it had been gloomy and raining. But on the big day the sky was pure blue, the sun was bright and warm—a perfect day for a perfect occasion.

Paris seems to have all the beautiful girls we have always heard it had. The women have an art of getting themselves up fascinatingly. Their hair is done crazily, their clothes are worn imaginatively. They dress in riotous colors in this lovely warm season, and when the flag-draped holiday streets are packed with Parisians the color makes everything else in the world seem gray.

As one soldier remarked, the biggest thrill in getting to Paris is to see people in bright summer clothes again.

Like any city, Paris has its quota of dirty and ugly people. But dirty and ugly people have emotions, too, and Hank Gorrell got roundly kissed by one of the dirtiest and ugliest women I have ever seen. I must add that since he's a handsome creature he also got more than his share of embraces from the beautiful young things.

There was one funny little old woman, so short she couldn't reach up to kiss men in military vehicles, who appeared on the second day carrying a stepladder. Whenever a car stopped she would climb her stepladder and let the boys have it with hugs, laughs and kisses.

The second day was a little different from the first. You could sense that during those first few hours of liberation the people were almost animal-like in their panic of joy and relief and gratitude. They were actually crying as they kissed you and screamed, "thank you, oh thank you, for coming!"

But on the second day it was a deliberate holiday. It was a festival prepared for and gone into on purpose. You could tell that the women had prettied up especially. The old men had on their old medals, and the children were scrubbed and Sunday-dressed until they hurt.

And then everybody came downtown. By 2 in the afternoon the kissing and shouting and autographing and applauding were almost deafening. The pandemonium of a free and lovable Paris reigned again. It was wonderful to be here.

The Battle Against Weight Is a Hard and Losing One

(Editor's Note: Sara Lawson McGinty, formerly a featured columnist on Macon papers, is the wife of Roy McGinty Jr., editor and publisher of the Chatsworth Times.)

"I wouldn't mind dieting," a lumpish lady once said, "if taking off my extra pounds was as much fun as putting it on."

It is no fun awaking to the fact that you can no longer wear dresses with tight bodices and billowy skirts without looking like Aunt Jemina, and that if you keep on ordering pie with ice cream for lunch and chocolate nut sundaes for pick-me-ups you'll soon be waddling with the fat side of the family you always swore you didn't take after.

At 17 it may have been jitterbug behavior that overbalanced such indulgences. Banana splits and peanuts didn't affect your beach prestige in the least. But alas, not many years later your gastronomical wild oats have to be harvested.

Time was when you kept one girdle in the back of your drawer to pull out and tug on with knitted dresses. Now one of those offsprings of the strait jacket goes everywhere you go.

The jolt really comes when you meet an old acquaintance you haven't seen for several years. Instead of gushing, "You're looking wonderful!" or "Just as stunning as ever!", she—it's bound to be a she—exclaims, "My, you're looking—well." The intonation indicates the speaker means well fed.

That is the decisive moment when you determine not to allow pounds to continue creeping up on your frame like ants invading a picnic.

Starches and sweets become outcasts. You work out a daily exercise routine including every hip-and-middle-melting exercise you ever heard of or read about. For three nights you do them all faithfully. Then you get invited out to dinner and don't have time. (The best guarantee in the world for dinner invitations is to resolve to lose weight.)

Then what joy, after three days of self-discipline, to break loose and go on a calory bender! Next morning, with accusing fingers, the bath room scales say, "Shame on you!"

Indoor exercising is as monotonous as a rack of bargain dresses. Turning on the radio relieves the boredom to some extent, but a new temptation lurks there. Invariably the program is sponsored by a chocolate pudding or cream cheese manufacturer. Before the 10th bend-touch-left-heel you have been sold by the announcer on the idea of looking into the refrigerator for a little snack as a reward for being a good girl and taking your exercises.

Someone told you that rolling on the floor will bring almost immediate results. Straightway that feature is added to the repertoire of things that make life not worth living. After the fourth time your stomach hits the carpet, the sofa, chairs and tables crowd in on you, reaching out with sharp corners to strike your unprotected shoulders, elbows and ankles. When you see dust you never saw before you are positive this rumor about rollin' must have been started by a vacuum cleaner salesman.

It is no help to lunch with friends who are underweight and are encouraged by their doctors, mind you, to gulp down gallons of milk every day and to revel in potatoes, ice cream and the like. "I eat a chocolate bar and drink a frosted malted milk every morning," the thin one complains, "and I can't gain an ounce."

All that time you are munching unhappily on a combination salad with reducer's mayonnaise. That is when you feel like giving up the struggle and leaving it to your pallbearers to worry about your weight.

RACCOON FLUSHES PRISONER OF WAR

GREDLEY, Col., Aug. 29. (AP)—A pet raccoon put officers on the trail that led to the capture last night of a German prisoner of war who escaped Sunday night from a camp near Greeley.

Fifteen-year-old Robert Brown let his raccoon, Butch, out for exercise yesterday. Later he found his pet in a corn patch trying to be friendly with a roughly dressed man.

Robert's father, J. M. Brown, called officers who overtook Gerhard Vatter, 19, and returned him to the prison camp.

A FUTURE TO SHARE

Your great grandmother's "parlor lamp" sheds wholesome, encouraging light on a problem troubling many today ...post-war employment

When Drake found "rock oil"—petroleum—in Pennsylvania in 1859, the chief use of his discovery was for the lighting of lamps.

It was good to have better light than that made by whale oil. It created a few jobs—to get the new rock oil out of the ground, refine it in a crude way, transport it to market, make the lamps in which to burn it . . .

A "few" jobs? This week, which marks the 85th Anniversary of Drake's discovery, we look back on that event as beginning the greatest upsurge of employment in human history! . . .

But not made simply by the lighting of lamps.

* * *

A great deal of what followed is familiar ground. You know all about the automobile, and the vast organizations to make and sell them, and the vast organizations to supply them with gasoline, oil and service.

You know about the millions of homes heated with "rock oil"—and the factory machines powered and lubricated—and the oil-burning ships—and the trucks, trains and tractors.

You know how all of these inter-relate, making jobs. Making them, direct, by the million . . . and creating other millions of "hidden" jobs.

* * *

THAT IS THE PAST AND THE PRESENT . . . POST-WAR? LET'S LOOK AT IT.

When the scientists really "got going" with petroleum, they discovered that instead of having something only to burn in a lamp or engine—or to lubricate a bearing—they were dealing with a universe of unseen building blocks which could be used in the making of new products.

Instead of splitting petroleum into crude "fractions"—gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil, lubricants, paraffin, and asphalt—they gradually, during years of research, learned the identity of the molecules in petroleum . . . and how to convert these into other molecules of greater usefulness.

These molecules are the unseen building blocks.

They are used to make, on the one hand, a gasoline with multiplied power . . . such as the 100 octane aviation gasoline which is speeding the day of final victory.

Or, selected and re-formed by the scientist with another end in view, they become synthetic rubber . . .

Or an essential part in a sedative to ease the pain of the afflicted . . . or in a superior anesthetic . . . or act as the "bonding agent" in laminates, building materials of the future . . . or enter the production of plastics and rayons which supplant less suitable materials . . . or, added to the soil, increase our food supply.

Through its now famed "University of Petroleum," Shell has contributed much to the nation's new knowledge of petroleum chemistry. Years devoted to basic research in petroleum hydrocarbons have disclosed important new ways of improving petroleum products for familiar, "expected" uses . . . and resulted in the discovery, in petroleum, of "unexpected" materials which will become the basis of new industries. This all adds up to JOBS.

IN THESE NEW INDUSTRIES JOBS WILL BE WAITING FOR THE TALENTS AND ENERGY OF THE MEN WHO WILL RETURN . . . NEW JOBS TO COME, BY THOUSANDS AND TENS OF THOUSANDS.

This is the answer to the question of post-war employment—an answer growing out of one industry. It is given with full realization that America's first problem is to WIN THE WAR . . . making "post-war" a reality.

"The lamps that resulted (from the discovery of petroleum) . . . marked a major step forward in artificial lighting. The important features were the use of a glass chimney, generation of the flame by means of an improved wick, and better fuel . . . What really put the kerosene-oil lamp within reach of the common people and started an industry that was to revolutionize more than artificial lighting, was the discovery of oil in Pennsylvania."

THE LISTENING POST

Hymn Prelude Is Dedicated To All Saints Choirmaster

Seth Bingham, professor of composition at Columbia University, organist and choirmaster of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church in New York, and one of the most noted composers of organ and choral music in the country, recently published 12 hymn preludes especially adapted for the organ. Joseph Ragan, organist and choirmaster of All Saints Episcopal church, read of the publication of the preludes and ordered the first set of six.

After playing several selections he found one so beautiful that he played it a second time. The title was "Bread of Life." Suddenly, he saw at the top of the sheet: "Dedicated to Joseph Ragan." Mr. Ragan was completely surprised to be complimented by so outstanding and distinguished a musician. All 12 of the selections have been dedicated to eminent organists throughout the United States, among them being Coke Jephcott, organist and choirmaster of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

Mr. Ragan holds one of the highest honors that organists can attain. He is a fellow in the American Guild of Organists, which is not an honorary title but which is won by the strictest of examinations. Mr. Bingham's gracious tribute to Mr. Ragan is indeed a well-earned and deserved one.

When pretty Carroll Magill and Walter Wellman married recently in Athens, there were two "Peeping Tom's" at the wedding. The bride's young cousin, Merritt Pound Jr., and his mother, Mrs. Merritt Pound, were under quarantine because of Merritt's recent return from a North Carolina camp. Mrs. Pound is an aunt of Carroll and so, with her young son, arranged two chairs in a "safety zone" just on the border line of the Magill property, where they watched the nuptial festivities.

The Magill-Wellman marriage, by the way, was the third marriage in the two families since January, when Dorothy Ann Wellman married Ens. William Voegeli. In May, Lt. Dan Magill, USMC, and Rosebary Reynaud were married, and a fourth marriage may be in the very near future. When Carroll tossed her bridal bouquet into the outstretched arms of her close friends after her wedding, the groom's young sister, Ruth Wellman, caught the flowers, thereby signifying that she will be the next bride.

She's a pretty blonde and though she has her ring,
She won't be married until next spring,
To a tall brunet who's an S. A. E.,
An ensign in the Navy and he's been at sea.

They're a popular pair and we can hardly wait,
To see their romance culminate.

One of the manikins in a Peachtree street shop window is attracting wide attention and has become the topic of much discussion lately. The model has one flesh-tinted arm and hand and the other is maize-colored. Passers-by have been intrigued to know whether this was accidental or intentional. Inquiry revealed that the maid, in dressing the manikin, accidentally broke her arm.

The management sent the figure back to the factory to have the broken arm replaced. Shortly after it was returned to Atlanta, the error of the mismatched color was detected. But by the time a communication from the Atlanta firm was dispatched, the factory that repaired the manikin had gone out of business. The proprietress of the Peachtree shop has appealed to artists and painters to help her out of her dilemma, but to no avail.

Poor Brunhilde, as she is called by officials of the firm, because she resembles Herr Hitler's friend, must continue to perform her duties in her disfigured condition until she can be replaced, either by a contemporary or a younger model.

Do you know? . . . That when Gov. Arnall left Sunday for Washington, D. C., he carried a shoebox filled with delicious southern fried chicken and biscuits? . . . and that Ralph McGill, who accompanied him, had his lunch box filled with hard-boiled eggs and his favorite ham sandwiches, and that Bill Sutherland and John Westmoreland boarded the same train with box lunches tucked under their arms? . . . That Mrs. Abner W. Calhoun observes her 89th birthday anniversary today at the Andrews drive residence of Mrs. Stuart Witham, her daughter? . . . That Mrs. Herbert Alden says that she has given up husband and home to the war effort, and all she has left is a broken-down automobile and a good disposition? . . . Lt. Cmdr. Alden is in the Pacific theater of war and Mrs. Alden's home was on Roswell road?

Jury Probes Fulton Police, Reorganization Is Predicted

Modernization and reorganization of the Fulton county police department appears a foregone conclusion as the result of a daylong investigation by the grand jury into the conduct of Capt. J. D. Ragsdale.

Capt. Ragsdale, who was said to have been slated to succeed Chief George Mathieson in the event the latter retired on account of his age, was alleged to have created a scene in the basement of the courthouse several days ago by slapping Patrolman Carl Thompson. Eyewitnesses said Ragsdale accused Thompson of saying that the captain had been seen drunk in public.

At the end of the long session, the grand jury turned over to Deputy Sheriff Walter Sentell a sheaf of indictments to be presented to a superior court judge. There being no judge at the courthouse to receive the indictments, according to routine procedure, Sentell will present them to the court today. Indictments do not become public property until presented to the court.

FOUR CHARGES

It was understood that the grand jury investigated in detail four charges against Ragsdale.

The first was that of assault and battery growing out of the alleged slapping of Thompson in the basement of the courthouse.

The second was that Ragsdale used "opprobrious words" during the altercation, which was in the vicinity of the courthouse concession which employs a number of women.

A third charge, it was said, dealt with an incident at the Toddle House, on Peachtree street, which brought about the alleged altercation in the courthouse. Patrolman Thompson was said to have been eating there one night recently when Capt. Ragsdale entered. The captain's conduct at the time was said to have been a subject of grand jury inquiry.

This alleged conduct, it was understood, was brought to the attention of County Commissioner Charlie Brown by a number of citizens. The commissioner, who, campaigning on a platform of reorganizing the county police department, won an overwhelming victory over J. A. (Al) Ragsdale, Capt. Ragsdale's brother, immediately began an investigation.

PROBE GOES TO JURY

This investigation, the results of which were placed by Brown before the grand jury several days ago, is said to have brought to light another incident involving Ragsdale and which may have further repercussions. This was the basis of a fourth charge investigated by the grand jury.

It was said to have had to do with an accident to the automobile in which Capt. Ragsdale was riding in January, 1943, on Northside drive. The car was wrecked and tore down a portion of rock wall, according to reports. The car and perhaps the wall were repaired at county expense, it was said.

County Commissioner Clarence Duncan last night read to The Constitution a certified copy of a letter written by Chief Mathieson to A. P. Dodd, superintendent of the garage at Bellwood prison camp. It was understood that the letter was part of the evidence submitted to the grand jury.

It reads:

"Dear Mr. Dodd,

"This will be your authority to pick up and repair the automobile of Captain J. D. Ragsdale which was wrecked while he was on duty Sunday night January 17, 1943. The car is now in Ray Wilson's garage, Buckhead, Ga.

(Signed) "George Mathieson,
"Chief of Police."

Appended was a note by Dodd to the effect that the labor and parts for the above repair job cost $333.91.

Both Commissioners Duncan and Brown said last night that no report of such an accident or such repairs had been made to the county commission within its hearing. Duncan said he had searched the commission's minutes and found no such report. Brown said he had asked Clerk Frank Fling to search the minutes for the same record, but that Fling had reported finding none.

Interesting sidelight on yesterday's grand jury session was the appearance at the courthouse of Chief Mathieson, veteran of 45 years on the Fulton county police force, resplendent in a gold-braided uniform. He had been criticized for not wearing a uniform while on duty.

Commissioner Brown said last night that he would present his police modernization plan to the commission next Wednesday. In his campaign he advocated a grand jury proposal for the retirement on pensions of Chief Mathieson, Assistant Chief J. C. Oliver and Capt. A. T. Butler "because of their advanced ages."

Toccoa Keen To Get Milk Drying Plant

Advantages of This New Industry to Dairymen Explained

By M. L. ST. JOHN,
Constitution Staff Writer.

TOCCOA, Aug. 29.—Civic leaders of Toccoa met tonight with the milk committee of the state legislature and the state milk control director to discuss the possibility of locating an evaporation plant in this area.

After hearing State Milk Control Director Alton Cogdell say a milk evaporation plant would provide a "market on the farm" for 15 counties, the Kiwanis and Lions Clubs made plans to have committees put to work in Stephens and surrounding counties. Cogdell said he would like to see three evaporation plants placed in north Georgia. Some Toccoans, like Senate President Frank Gross, declared they were anxious to bring one of the nationally known plants into Toccoa.

In his talk, Cogdell told the civic clubs he and the legislative committee were amazed at Tennessee and Alabama progressing in the dairy business while Georgians quit dairying. A tour of these neighboring states found milk cans setting in front of practically every farm house, waiting for pick-up trucks from evaporation plants and cheese plants, he said.

ANXIOUS TO COME

So he set to work to bring these plants, with their steady incomes for dairymen, to Georgia. He found that big companies are anxious and ready to come to this state, if the farmers will supply the milk.

These plants will provide a semi-monthly cash pay roll to small farmers, Cogdell pointed out. He said the farmer could use this as a sideline cash income to supplement his diversified farming operations. Evaporation plants in other southern states obtain most of their milk from farmers with less than five cows, he added.

As a community building proposition, the evaporation plant pays out thousands of dollars daily to farmers and employs about 100 workers or more. Cogdell asserted. They pick up the milk at the farm and mail the checks to the farmer twice a month.

STEPHENS COUNTY'S AIM

President Jack Salvador, of the Kiwanis club, and President Walt Barnes, of the Lions' club, together with Gross, pointed out that Stephens county is attempting to lead Georgia in developing the dairying industry. It has pasture land nine months a year. R. G. LeTourneau, whose big war plant operates here, has set up a dairy "to show the people of north Georgia that milk can provide an easy farm income."

The legislative committee visited LeTourneau's Louise Dairy, this afternoon. Here they saw one of the southeast's outstanding milk producing herds, and a modern all steel dairy plant, complete with ice cream, butter, and chocolate milk sidelines.

Manager J. R. Heiple showed the solons the farm's 100 Jersey cows, worth from $500 to more than $3,000 each and giving upwards to eight gallons of milk daily averaging 4.7 per cent butterfat. He showed them the three bulls, worth around $1,000, $2,500 and $4,000.

Manager Heiple was enthusiastic about the future of dairying in this section. He expressed interest in the evaporation plant and said it could help develop Georgia dairying.

Making the trip to Toccoa were Senators Henry Arnall of Newnan and Jess Baggett of Lawrenceville and Representative Phillips of Harlem. They were accompanied by Hamilton McWhorter of Lexington and Nelson Shipp, assistant director of conservation.

$750,000 Asked For Trade School

A formal application to the Federal Works Agency for an additional $750,000 of Lanham funds for an area vocational trade school has been made by the Fulton county board of education, it was announced.

The county school board made the application for the school, which would include a $500,000 building for whites and a $250,000 building for Negroes, following a request by the state board for Fulton to initiate the project, Supt. Jere A. Wells said.

If the application is approved by the FWA, construction on the project, which will probably be located near the center of the metropolitan area, will begin immediately to train war workers.

The trade school would also be useful in the postwar era for the training of returning servicemen and workers to meet the needs of industrial expansion in this area.

Vegetables Will Be Better Liked If Served in Appealing Ways

By Sally Saver.

Long ago you should have discovered that telling family and friends something is good for them doesn't make them like it. Chances are they'll like it less; human nature is perverse. We should eat vegetables, both cooked and raw each day. But they'll be eaten more readily if you say nothing at all about their famed vitamins and minerals, and just serve them up in pretty and appealing ways. The following recipes will win friend and influence people in favor of vegetables:

CARROT-WATERCRESS SALAD
(Lettuce or young cabbage if watercress is not available.)
1 Package orange flavored gelatin
1-12 cups boiling water
2 Tablespoons lemon juice
1-12 Teaspoons salt
1 Cup finely shredded raw carrots
1 Bunch watercress (about 1 cup shredded raw greens)

Dissolve gelatin in hot water, add lemon juice and salt. Cool until mixture begins to thicken. Add carrots and watercress or other greens, coarsely chopped. Turn into a ring mold and chill until firm. Turn out on serving tray and fill center with more chopped greens. Serve with mayonnaise or French dressing.

MEAT AND BREAD RING WITH CREAMED CARROTS

4 Cups enriched bread
2 Cups cooked meat (any kind) cubed
2 Beaten eggs
1 Cup meat broth or milk
1½ Teaspoons salt
1-4 Teaspoon pepper
2 Cups medium white sauce
2 Cups cooked sliced carrots

Mix bread cubes and meat. Beat eggs, add liquid, salt and pepper. Combine with meat mixture. Pour into greased ring mold, pressing down firmly. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 45 minutes. To the hot white sauce add the sliced carrots and heat. Unmold meat ring on hot platter, fill center with carrots and garnish with parsley or watercress.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—Before 10:06 a. m. favors dealings in land, finishing old matters and contacting aggressive people. The remainder of the day suggests that you practice restraint, otherwise you may meet or feel sarcastic objections towards those you meet.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—Previous to 2:03 p. m. does not favor important undertakings, asking favors and for promises. Between 2:03 p. m. and 5:06 p. m. favors seeking advice from brokers, bankers, educational people and sports.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Previous to 2:39 p. m. favors mechanical and industrial work, mechanical ideas and sports. After 2:39 p. m. use care in signing papers.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Personal affairs and interests of a wider scope will have a tendency towards strain, animosity or you may be inclined to overdo, therefore the day does not favor new or important undertakings.

July 23-August 22 (LEO)—The entire day and until 10:36 p. m. favors accomplishments of a stable nature and those things that call for a righting of opinion. Quick action, writing, contracts, will likely be stimulating to your profit.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Business and social affairs should meet a ready response before 2:36 p. m. Between 2:36 p. m. and 7:13 p. m. you may rely on your own initiative. After 7:13 p. m. avoid haphazard attempts at accomplishments.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—The entire day and until 10:36 p. m. favors accomplishments of a stable nature and those things that call for a righting of difference of opinion.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—Opportunities for co-operation or closer companionships with others will be felt in many ways throughout the day. The entire day and evening favors financial affairs and dealings with professional people.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 7:20 p. m. is an excellent period for the advancement of well-laid plans, matters connected with land, mines, liquids, for organization work and for laying a sound foundation. After 7:20 p. m. does not especially favor attaining the co-operation of others.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—The entire day is filled with influences that produce idealism and little regard for pure facts, therefore new beginnings, encounters and daily occurrences may have meanings that are below the surface.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—The better part of the day is before 12:57 noon when it should be well to give your undivided attention to matters that bring you personal benefits. An excellent day to come to decisions. After 12:57 noon favors sticking to routine.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—You may find this a very important day, especially if you will turn your activities toward practical outlets. Conferences, selling, humanitarian endeavors, work that demands quick action, dealings with those who stand high in their chosen work, are matters most favored.

MY DAY... By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Sunday.—A very kind gentleman sent me a letter from a friend of his, Ens. Henry Swain, of Washington, N. J., who was on board an Lst as part of the landing force in Normandy. We have all read with the greatest admiration, I know, the wonderful story in Ernie Pyle's columns of the past few days about the courageous British airman. I think this letter from one of our young Americans breathes the same kind of "never give up" spirit which wins battles and keeps a world free. There is too much to put into one column, yet I cannot bear not to let you have it all, so there will be two installments.

"Again fate played us a trick," the letter runs, "and it was not till the fifth that we started on the gruelling trek over to the far shore. Our cargo was made up of a polyglot assortment of armed forces and vehicles, which ranged from infantry to paratroopers, from jeeps to radar equipment. It was precious, and it was to be in the fight just six hours after the first assault waves were to hit.

"The trip across the channel was not too potent, for we had a speed of only five knots, and that was gruesome, since there was a choppy sea and we waddled like an old duck all the way. To make matters worse, we slept at our stations and had to be on the alert all the time. I happened to have the conn when we first caught sight of the terrific barrage that the big babies were putting up. It was 12 midnight, and it topped off a day which had been a continual parade of ships of the British and American navies. We would pass a slow convoy of ships—I did not think there was one slower than ours, but I was wrong—and then we would be passed, as if we were stopped, by the heavies moving up.

"The morning of D-Day, 6 June, 1944, was most beautiful. A brilliant sky was the backdrop for our first sight of the air force in action. We could hardly believe our eyes at the color displayed. Shortly after, it clouded over again, and when it broke, the largest rainbow I have ever seen arched the sky. Could be a good omen.

"The whole day seemed particularly quiet, and nary a shot, bomb or mine disturbed our casual investigation of the great invasion. Frankly, we were disappointed, but not to the point of asking for it. We were willing to leave enough alone. We pulled into our anchorage late in the afternoon in the Baie de la Seine, France. Our 34-hour grind was over."

LOUELLA PARSONS Reports:

Knox of 'Wilson' Fame Is Fine Comedian Also

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.—(INS) I've heard that Alexander Knox, whose "Wilson" made screen history, is as good a comedian as he is a dramatic actor. He has the feeling his next role should be a departure from the serious "Wilson" characterization, and so he is listening to a comedy idea Sydney Buchman has for him. Buchman wants to co-star Knox with Irene Dunne in "Over 21" before he makes Hilton's "And Now Goodbye." The script is being rewritten to build up the man's part, and Knox is greatly interested.

Don't know how they'll ever get any romance out of the "Life of Susan B. Anthony" in the movies, yet she's the gal who made it possible for us women to vote. Ketti Fringes, who authored "Hold Back the Dawn," has written a 300-page script on the career of Susan B., the woman suffrage crusader, and Hunt Stromberg is interested in making a picture of it. Who will play Miss Anthony? From her photographs I don't believe any of our glamor girls would be interested.

Chatter in Hollywood: Alfred Drake's experiences in Hollywood were not exactly what you would call beneficial to his career, but at least didn't hurt his pocketbook. He played one of the leads in "Oklahoma!" and was brought here by Columbia. The studio never had a picture for him, but he was paid for the weeks he spent doing nothing. Now he goes to New York to do another show for the Theater Guild. I call that a swell vacation.

A Line or Two: Gracie Allen is looking for an office. She says it can be in the same building with George Burns but not on the same floor. "It's more businesslike to write my column on another floor," says Gracie. . . . Word has been received by Adela Rogers St. John of the birth of a girl to her daughter, Elaine. (Mrs. Eric Hartesk). This makes Adela's fourth grandchild, and she is one young grandmother who wants to be called "grandma." . . . Roscoe Karns writes that "School for Brides" opened three weeks ago in terrifically hot weather in New York. Says Roscoe: "The show got panned but not the actors, and the audience laughed and liked it. The business has doubled, with seats selling six weeks in advance."

Mrs. Fryer Lends Support To 'Wilson' Movie Premiere

MRS. R. C. FRYER.

Mrs. R. C. Fryer Jr., of Manchester, attractive and capable president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, was in Atlanta yesterday to lend her support to the members of the Young Matrons' Circle in their sponsorship of the southern premiere of Darryl F. Zanuck's "Wilson," September 13 at the Paramount theater. Mrs. Fryer expressed the hope that all Georgia clubwomen would join with the Young Matrons' Circle in making this one of their most successful projects.

"I am looking forward with great enthusiasm to seeing 'Wilson,'" said Mrs. Fryer. "From all reports, I understand it is packed full of eye-filling scenes of political conventions, campaign rallies, congressional gatherings, not to mention the White House soirees, and the romantic angle. It is," continued Mrs. Fryer, "timely and comes when we all are thinking in terms of peace and peace treaties."

Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs owns the Tallulah Falls school, which is operated by a board of trustees, of which Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick is president.

The premiere is sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle for the benefit of the building fund of the school, and was given to the circle for the purpose of stimulating gifts to the building fund. Admission is by invitation.

Invitations to the premiere are tendered in recognition of gifts to the fund. There will be no admission charges. The number of invitations of necessity will be limited to the capacity of the Paramount theater, where the southern premiere will take place, and will be accompanied by a definite seat allocation.

For information concerning the building fund and the premiere, call WAlnut 1630 or MAin 0552. Mrs. Robert F. Adamson is general chairman of the premiere. Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger, Mrs. Willard C. Patterson and Mrs. George A. Beattie, president of the Young Matrons' Circle, compose the advisory committee. Mrs. C. Carl Sloan is in charge of publicity; Mrs. Dan M. Byrd Jr., ushers; Mrs. G. Grady Poole, Mrs. Franklin Nash, Mrs. Richard D. King, Mrs. James N. Frazer and Mrs. Keith Quarterman, building fund committee.

ON THE AIR

By PAUL JONES

It seems I have underestimated the popularity of Frank Sinatra in Atlanta.

In last Wednesday's "On the Air," I referred to the new singing star as the nation's No. 2 Crooner . . . simply because I felt Crosby deserved the No. 1 spot through seniority.

Frank Sinatra.

But, it appears from my mail that Frankie is more than just a passing fancy with the younger set here. . . . A letter from little Joan Griffith, of 2099 Delano drive, is typical. . . .

Miss Griffith, like the others, said Sinatra was tops, and she asked in a postscript that we publish a likeness of Frankie in this column.

At the risk of making lots of his Atlanta fans jealous, Frankie, tonight will appear with one of the screen's most lovely teen-agers, Joan Leslie.

In a dramatic sketch, Sinatra will play the role of Miss Leslie's brother who listens sympathetically to his sister's complaints about parental restrictions. . . . The kid sister yearns for a career on the stage, dresses and silk hose and freedom like the other girls. The show will be heard at 8 p. m. over WGST.

Emerich Kalman's operetta, "Empress Josephine," which was premiered in Zurich in 1936 and which has never been heard in this country, will be given its initial performance at 9 p. m. today over WGST during the "Great Moments in Music" show.

The operetta will be presented in condensed form with Jean Tennyson, soprano; Jan Peerce, tenor, and Robert Weede, baritone, as featured soloists. George Sebastian's orchestra will accompany.

Harry Wismer, one of the nation's top sports announcers, will be at the mike, when Mutual airs a play-by-pplay description of the college All-Stars-National Football League game at 9 p. m. today over WATL.

The Chicago Bears will represent the pro league, making their fifth start in this yearly event. The Stars will be composed of players from all sections of the country.

SPORTS

ALL IN THE GAME
JACK TROY

This Ends It BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 29.—Scrappy Moore, manager of the Chattanooga Lookouts, has heard everything now, he admitted yesterday in New Orleans when Chattanooga came to the Crescent City to open a series.

In the recent Chattanooga-Nashville series in Sulphur Dell, there were newspaper stories charging Chattanooga with hustling in an effort to beat Nashville and win the second-half pennant for Atlanta.

"We haven't been playing bad baseball lately and, of course, we were hustling to try to get out of the cellar," said Moore, who hates to lose. Moore is peacetime coach of Chattanooga University football and is a former University of Georgia athlete. He always has been a real competitor.

Moore and Chattanooga were roasted in Nashville. Ortiz, leading pitcher, asked to be allowed to pitch both games of a double-header. Ortiz won the first game and, except for bad breaks, might have won the second game.

Vol supporters blew their tops. They screamed that Chattanooga was trying to win for Atlanta and Ki Ki Cuyler. Why Chattanooga should be this generous I do not know. Joe Engel is a fine fellow, and all that, but he doesn't try to win for Atlanta.

It was a tough series for Scrappy Moore. He said that even a leather-lunged policeman sitting down on the field hurled insults at him throughout.

The race is really getting down to the brass knucks stage.

Pro Cage League Plans are definitely under way, I learn, to form a Southern Conference of professional basketball as well as pro football, as soon as it's feasible to start.

Among the towns being considered are Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis, Miami, Mobile, Chattanooga, possibly Jacksonville and Louisville.

Basketball is growing more popular in the south and seems destined one day to become a leading attraction. The pro game is very colorful.

Basketball isn't an expensive sport to conduct. Players can travel in station wagons and avoid a lot of expense for the sponsors. There was talk before the war of forming such a league, but naturally all plans were shelved after Pearl Harbor.

Now the plans are being revived.

Seems that Miami, Fla., is being considered for everything—pro football, basketball and a place in the Southern League of baseball.

An application for a spot in a pro football league already has been filed. Doug Wycoff is interested in the Miami club.

In order to play in a pro league, Miami teams and their opponents would have to travel by air. It sounded far-fetched at first when Joe Engel said he was considering Miami for the Chattanooga franchise.

But it's not far-fetched.

If Miami is going to be in a pro football league, it certainly can work out travel problems attendant upon joining the Southern League in baseball.

Buddy Callaway The following tribute to a well-known Georgia sports figure was written by Bill Breitenstein, who long was associated with auto racing. He now is public relations, head of a plane plant.

"They buried Buddy Callaway, Georgia's greatest auto race driver, the other day. He died in Miami, Fla., of natural causes, where he and his brother, Foggy, operated a deep-sea fishing boat.

"Buddy had been in plenty of track accidents, some of them at Lakewood, where he had raced longer and oftener than any other driver who came across the speedway pike.

"His sturdy face looked out from the flower-banked coffin, with scars which he had brought back from speedy jousts, but the lights went out for Buddy in an era when the government had banned auto racing—and stifled as he was from the sport he loved, he surely went west to join Floyd Viaux, Chet Gardner, Billy Winn, Clay Weatherly, Norski Larson, former Lakewood competitors, with the satisfaction that he beat out the man with the scythe on the tracks and breathed his last in the beflowered city where he had moved from Macon some years ago."

Nobody ever seemed to bother to ask Buddy what his first name or initials were. It was always just Buddy, on the street, on the track or at his home. Brother, L. J., sort of wistfully picked out, or had hung on him, the nickname of "Foggy." They raced together. Buddy played the straight role, Foggy the clown.

Promoters who tried to lure Buddy to the far-off racing zones were often faced with the fact that they had to sign up Foggy, too, such was the brother loyalty.

Having received what information we have on hand from a reliable source, one could write almost ad infinitum about "Big Buddy," "The Macon Peach," "Dixie's greatest dirt track racer."

Callaway made racing motors from Hispano Suiza airplane engines, slung them in big, well-balanced cars and competed against the sleek Millers, Offenhausers, Cragars, McDowells, etc., because he was strong enough to handle his high creations on the tracks. After wheeling Buddy's car around the race track at DeLand, Fla., Sig Haughdahl once said, "I don't see how he does it." But the car was fast enough, and Sig crafty enough to bring it in home the winner.

Crackers Beat Barons, 11-4, in Series Opener

By JACK TROY,
Constitution Sports Editor.

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 29.—Atlanta climbed back to within a half game of Nashville Tuesday night when the Crackers pounced on the haphazard Barons for a 11-to-4 victory. The Crackers lost Pitcher Dick Mauney, who twisted an ankle in sliding into second in the second inning and he may miss a turn or two on the mound.

Johnny Burrows, the relief pitcher, went in and won himself a ball game, allowing six scattered hits. He fanned eight of the Barons.

Bob Ferguson, Joe Lease and Bob Evans caught the 15-hit barrage of the Crackers, who scored as many runs in the first inning as they scored in the last three games down in New Orleans.

It was a bad night afield for the Barons. They hatched eight errors, most of them costly.

Howard Fox is the only pitcher the Barons have to send against the Crackers Wednesday night. Francis Cronin will go for the Crackers, who got a boost in morale, winning while the Vols were taking a shellacking from the Travelers.

BOTH SCORE IN FIRST

Atlanta got two runs for one in the first. Mauldin teed off on the first pitch for a single to left. Goodman struck out. Gearhart flied to left. Deal singled to center. Thaxton dropped Reid's fly ball after a long run. Mauldin and Deal scored.

Thaxton opened with a single to center and Mauney walked Daniel. Flager and Sipek flied out to Ivy. Beeler singled to right, scoring Thaxton. Beeler took second on Deal's throw to the plate. Catchings was purposely walked. Mauney threw out Bradley.

The Crackers lost Mauney, and left three men on in the second. Ivy led off with a hit with one out. Mauney went safe on Ferguson's error. Beeler booted Mauldin's grounder. Mauney, in sliding into second, twisted his ankle and had to be escorted from the field. Jones went in to run for Mauney. Goodman popped to short.

Bob Ferguson was driven from the mound in the Crackers' four-run rally in the third. Reid worked Ferguson for a free ticket to first and the rally was on. Viers singled to left. Ivy singled to right, scoring Reid. Fajo singled to left, scoring Viers. Ivy came home on Burrows' single into center. Mauldin grounded to Bradley, and Fajo scored when Bradley threw low to Smith at the plate.

Johnny Burrows walked Lease in the fourth and before he could say jack rabbit the Barons had two runs. Thaxton tripled into right-center and scored when Viers made a poor throw to the plate.

CRACKERS GET TWO MORE

Atlanta picked up two more runs in the sixth. Mauldin grounded to Beeler and Daniel dropped the throw. Goodman scratched a hit to the left of the plate. Gearhart busted one down the first base line and Daniel overran the ball. Viers flied to right and Mauldin scored. Reid flied to center and Goodman scored.

Birmingham scored its fourth run in the seventh. Sipek singled through short and went to third on Burrows' wild pitch. He scored on Beeler's double.

Atlanta broke loose on Lease and Evans for three runs in the eighth. Gearhart walked. Deal sacrificed, Reid walked, Viers singled through short, scoring Gearhart, sending Deal to third. Evans relieved. Ivy singled through first and second, scoring Reid. Burrows singled into center, scoring Viers.

Butts Drills Squad of 30

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 29.—A squad of 30-odd candidates greeted Coach Wally Butts today on Georgia's second day of official football practice.

Said Butts, "We're expecting a few more freshmen in here on September 4 but we've already lost a good many key men."

Starting tomorrow morning, the Red and Black eleven will begin two-a-day practice sessions, the morning drills from 9 until 10:30, the evening ones from 7 until 9, approximately.

Coach Butts spent most of the hour and a half involved today in sending his backs, ends and centers through a rigorous passing drill, followed by a half-hour of running plays. The rotund Bulldog mentor seemed especially pleased at the pass receiving and running of Al Perl, Youngstown's contribution to the 1944 team.

Also on hand to spark the meager backs were "Rabbit" Smith, Palatka, Fla., right halfback; Billy Rutland, Columbus, Ga., full; Stan Nestorak, Detroit, Mich., left half; Lester Ray, Columbus, Ga., left half; Billy Hodges, Decatur, Ga., quarterback, and George Skipworth, Columbus, Ga., quarterback.

Coach J. B. Whitworth armed with only 15 linemen with which to drill sent them charging into the dummies and other linemen's exercises. Many of the 15 were newcomers to the Georgia school, system and location, but oldsters such as "Mike" Castronis, Jacksonville guard; Andy Perhach, Youngstown tackle; Beefy Eaves, Elberton, Ga., guard; Herb St. John, young but shining Jacksonville guard; George Jernigan, Springfield, Tenn., guard, and some fairly new freshmen.

BAN ON AMMUNITION SALES IS ORDERED LIFTED BY WPB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The ban on sale of ammunition to hunters was lifted today by the War Production Board, opening the way for the Nimrods' first real season since the war began.

At the same time, WPB also boosted quotas of ammunition for farmers and ranchers to use against predatory animals.

Ammunition production this year is expected to be about 62 per cent of prewar output, WPB said. Chairman Robertson, Democrat, Virginia, of the House Conservation Committee, estimated that between 450,000,000 and 500,000,000 shotgun shells will be offered for sale and said an "adequate" supply of rifle cartridges will be available.

Until December 31, farmers and ranchers and hunters will have the following quarterly quota: 150 rounds of .22 caliber rim-fire cartridges, 40 rounds of center-fire rifle ammunition or 50 rounds if customarily packaged 50 to a box), and 100 shotgun shells of any guage.

The previous quarterly quota for farmess and ranchers was 100 rounds of .22 rim-fire cartridges, 40 rounds of center-fire ammunition and 25 shotgun shells.

NovelTourney Is Scheduled At Druid Hills

A novel "Hard To Get" golf tournament is scheduled for members and their families at Druid Hills Club Labor Day, Pro Harry Stevens announced yesterday.

The tournament is named "Hard to Get" because all prizes offered are things which have practically gone off the market during the war, Stevens said.

Such things as a golf umbrella, shotgun shells, a big steak, nylon hose, prewar golf ball and even a man to mow your lawn are being offered winners in various divisions.

The tournament is open for both men and women and entry fee is only $1.00. All non-golfing members are being invited to participate and green fees for them will be lifted for the day. The tournament will be score vs. par, with handicaps to apply.

Ross Lucas, club manager, is arranging a swimming meet during the afternoon for children and will also hold a swimming exhibition that night.

Prizes will be awarded and winners announced at a barbecue following the tournament.

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 29.—(AP)—The doughty Chicago Bears, professional football champions, will battle the collegiate All-Stars in the 11th game of the charity series tomorrow night determined to protect their record of thrice emerging victorious and once tied in four previous spectacular engagements.

Paid Chaplain Urged by Jury

In a special presentment, the Fulton county grand jury has recommended the full-time employment for county prisons and camps of a chaplain to "aid in reforming criminals while incarcerated."

"While we recognize that the best deterrent to crime is knowledge of certain punishment, we firmly believe that uniform and proper religious service, with adequate ministrations by chaplains, would be an invaluable contribution in creating a desire on the part of prisoners to return to society as law-abiding citizens," the presentment said.

The presentment reaffirmed the jury's previous recommendation that adult criminals—"repeater" cases—should be imprisoned, but added that such offenders should be afforded an opportunity to reform while in prison.

The jurors recommended that the board of county commissioners appoint a full-time chaplain to have complete supervision over chaplain services in the county's prisons and camps; that the chaplain be a qualified, ordained minister with sufficient education, executive and organization ability; that his salary be fixed by the commissioners, and that an advisory board to the chaplain be named, including representatives of the board of commissioners, the Atlanta Christian council, the sheriff and the probation officer.

Members of the jury said that two officers of the Christian council, Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, and Dr. Edward Mackay, superintendent of the Atlanta East district of the Methodist church, have pointed out the need for such a chaplain, and that I. Gloer Hailey, chairman of the county commission, has promised complete cooperation.

The jury added that the expense of a chaplain would be more than offset by an appreciable saving in the cost of crime.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear son, brother and cousin, Mr. John L. Wood, who departed this life three years ago today, August 30, 1941. Days of sadness still come over us. Secret tears do often flow. In our heart you will live forever—though you passed three years ago.
MR. AND MRS. HENRY WOOD,
MRS. MATTIE SUTTON, Sister;
MRS. ANNIE PARHAM, Sister;
PVT. OSCAR WOOD, Brother;
MRS. BEATRICE HUGHLEY, Aunt;
MRS. ANNIE RUTH MURPHY, Cousin.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our beloved brother, James Edward Ivey:

Eight years ago you left us, Jim,
Our hearts were filled with pain,
But not for the wealth of a nation,
Would we have you suffer again.

God is in every tomorrow,
Therefore we live for today,
Certain of finding at sunrise
Guidance and strength for the way.

Power for each moment of weakness,
Hope for each moment of pain,
Comfort for every sorrow,
Sunshine and joy after rain.
THE IVEY FAMILY.

STOCK SALES

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—As in recent sessions, stocks with postwar prospects today attracted further modest demand while many market leaders elsewhere continued to reflect skepticism regarding their peacetime position.

The conservative ranks were well filled from the start as the United Nations drive toward Germany again accentuated doubts over industrial transition programs should victory come quickly in Europe.

Conflicting trends prevailed in today's bond market. The higher priced industrials and utilities received good support at higher levels, but all other groups reflected both profit-taking and accumulation of favored issues.

Curb gainers included Diana Stores, Atlantic Sugar, United Wallpaper, Glen Alden Coal and St. Regis Paper. Turnover here was 191,850 shares versus 204,100 yesterday.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Scattered profit-taking and liquidation caused easiness in the cotton market today as offering met only scale-down trade support. The reaction was attributed to favorable war news, doubts that the Bankhead bill for a higher cotton loan rate will pass, and disappointment over failure of aggressive mill buying to develop on the announcement of the OPA increase in the cotton yarn market.

Dr. Abercrombie To Tell Of State Health Plan

The first detailed explanation of the changes called for in the new health plan recently devised for the state by the agricultural and industrial development board will be made in Gainesville today by Department of Health Director T. F. Abercrombie, who is backing the proposed changes.

Abercrombie will discuss the new program at a joint meeting of the Gainesville Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs at 1 p. m. in the Dixie Hunt hotel. At 1:30 p. m. (EWT) he will appear on station WGGA, Gainesville, to present the plan to the general public.

The program, as outlined by Dr. Abercrombie and Dr. Rufus Payne, director of the board's health panel, calls for a shift in Georgia from the county unit plan to a district set-up, a change which its supporters claim will double the state's health protection.

Schedule published as information.

Bond Cashing To Be Facilitated

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The Treasury today outlined its arrangements for simplifying War Bond redemptions to provide holders with ready cash when they need it.

Under the new plan, effective October 2, individual owners or co-owners of bonds can turn them into cash by presenting them to any commercial bank or trust company which has qualified for the service. The bank will pay the full redemption value immediately upon satisfactory identification and without charge to the bond owner.

Present redemption machinery is slow because the bonds must be cleared through a federal reserve bank or the treasury before they can be converted into cash.

All incorporated banks and trust companies will be permitted to qualify as redemption agencies. They will be compensated on a quarterly basis at a rate of 15 cents each for the first thousand bonds cashed, 12 cents each for the second thousand, and 10 cents each for all in excess of 2,000.

The plan applies to series A, B, C and D savings bonds sold between 1935 and 1941, as well as the popular series E War Bond, but it does not apply to Series F and G War Bonds.

In announcing details of the plan Secretary Morgenthau said he hoped the simplification "will not encourage bond owners to present bonds for payment except in cases of absolute necessity," because "huge sums are still to be required before we can return to a normal period."
